FORMER BRITISH PREMIER HANDED ROYAL WELCOME

New York Pays Tribute to Welch Statesman on Western Tour

GOES TO CANADA

Western Cities Demand Attention from British Statesman

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—David Lloyd George left New York for Montreal today on the first lap of his tour of the United States and Canada.

His party was aboard a five-car special train.

After being guided by police through a cheering throng of admirers in the concourse of Grand Central Station the dapper little Welshman with his wife and daughter, Megan, were established in the private car, Ottawa, in which as guests of Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National railways, they will live throughout the tour.

Although he had been first up after one of the most strenuous days of a strenuous career Lloyd-George was bright-eyed and smiling and the most cheerful of the party. He talked little but smiled a lot, waging his clack walnut stick and doffing his square crowned derby in acknowledgement of the plaudits which accompanied his entrance of limousines from the Waldorf Astoria to the station.

The diminutive statesman was up at six a. m., long before the other members of the party arose. He was the center of a mild demonstration at the hotel, the doors and corridors adjoining "Peacock Alley" being filled with guests eager for sight of him.

The flood of invitations from western cities which Lloyd-George received yesterday and last night induced him to take under advisement this morning a proposal that he extend his Canadian tour westward from Winnipeg to Vancouver and Pacific coast cities, it was announced by Peter B. Kyne, American author, who is managing the visiting program.

As Kyne said, however, he doubted very much whether the present itinerary could be altered. To visit was to have gone from Winnipeg down into Minnesota and circled back south and east to New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—As he passed into the subterranean railroad shed a score of flashlights flared up to turn the dim chamber into brightness. The cheers of those on the station platform mingled with faint echoes of a similar demonstration far off in the concourse as the train pulled out. Lloyd-George, his wife and daughter, waved New York adieu from the railway platform.

To no other person unless perhaps to General Pershing when he returned from France has a more cordial welcome, a more spontaneous display of friendship, been extended than that accorded Great Britain's former prime minister.

His stay was brief but the less than 24 hours that he was in New York were crowded with tribute after tribute, ovation after ovation.

From the time he left the deck of the steamer Mauretania yesterday morning until he passed into the train shed of the Grand Central Terminal today he was greeted at every turn by a shouting, admiring throng.

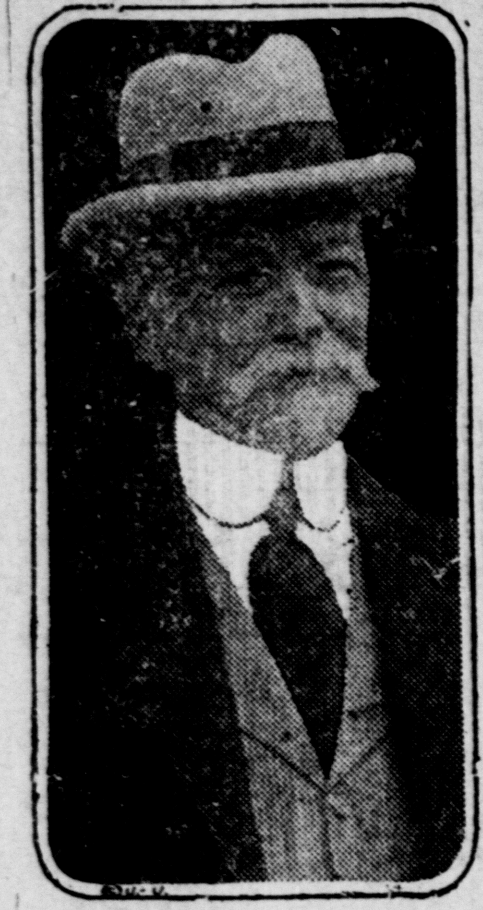

Only a few incidents occurred to mar an otherwise unanimous welcome. Irish republican sympathizers gathered at various places but the police were so efficient in dispersing the disturbers that Mr. Lloyd George in some instances failed to note them.

Besides the "Ottawa" car of the entourage which has been placed at the ex-premier's disposal to take over all railroads during this tour the special train included the private car of George H. Ingalls, vice-president of the New York Central. In another private car were Sir Harry Thornton, Lady Thornton, and their daughter. A fourth was the private car of J. Dalrymple, vice-president of the Canadian National railway. In the first car of the special train were a score of newspaper correspondents.

The United States railways decreased 2,200 miles between 1916 and 1921.

Doing nothing is hard to stop.

SEVEN ARRESTED ON KLAN CHARGE

Alleged Shawnee Klansmen Charged in Connection With Floggings

(By the Associated Press)

SHAWNEE, Oct. 6.—Seven alleged participants in flogging cases here were arrested late today on warrants sworn out in county court after their cases had been dismissed in justice court by county attorney Claude Hendon because Justice Moore granted a continuance until November 1 on application.

The county attorney immediately filed charges in county court against the men and following their arrests they were released pending hearing Wednesday.

The seven were arrested following investigation into mob violence in this county by a joint military and civil court of inquiry.

The defendants are: Dr. J. A. Walker, a local physician, and cyclops of the Shawnee Ku Klux Klan C. M. Reber, former major in the Oklahoma national guard; Louis Shull, Lafayette Evans, Malcolm Couch, Ernest Brundage, all charged with rioting and G. C. Wallace charged with perjury.

Another Death is Reported in Fire In Tonkawa Fields

(By the Associated Press)

BLACKWELL, Oct. 6.—The death of Ben Adams, an oil field driller, in a Tonkawa hospital today brought the number of fatalities in a fire in the Tonkawa field last night to two. W. D. Michael, also a driller, died in a hospital at Perry soon after the fire. Another man was severely burned but is expected to recover. Three rigs were destroyed.

The fire started from a force when one of the three wells was being drilled in and spread rapidly to all three of the rigs known as Number 10, Number 10-A, and Number 10-B. The blaze was extinguished after the rigs were destroyed.

WOMAN HELD IN JAIL FOR HUSBAND SLAYING

(By the Associated Press)

DUNCAN, Oct. 6.—Bessie Jo Dryden, 21, is held in jail here following the shooting of her husband, Jeff Dryden, 30, here this evening. Dryden is expected to recover.

The woman claimed the shooting was accidental. A pistol in her hand was unintentionally discharged while she was scuffling with her husband. Mrs. Dryden told officers.

Pinchot Not Ambitious

HELENA, Mont. Oct. 6.—At the present time Governor Gifford Pinchot has no ambition for any other job than the one he now holds as Pennsylvania's chief executive, according to a statement made by Governor Pinchot in a letter to Governor Joseph M. Dixon, written after the death of President Harding.

New York Banker Is Indicted for Receiving Funds

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Peter Ardinghe, assistant manager of the National City bank was arrested today on an indictment returned early in the week charging him with criminally receiving some of the $100,000 worth of bonds stolen from the offices of the Southern and Western Life Insurance company of Cincinnati in November, 1922.

Ardinghe was in California on his vacation when he heard he was wanted by the authorities and immediately returned and surrendered. He was released on $5000 bond.

Ardinghe's wife was said to be a daughter of Andrew E. Alby, retired steel manufacturer of Santa Barbara, California.

SOLONS PREPARE FOR PILGRIMAGE

Women reported now Backing Walton after failure Of Amendment

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 6.—Oklahoma's tangled politics assumed further complications today as members of the state legislature prepared for their second attempt to convene in extraordinary session to institute impeachment charges against Governor J. C. Walton.

With the legislators reported already gathered in Oklahoma City for the assembly on October 17 in response to a call issued last night by W. D. McBee of Stevens county heading more than a majority of the lower house membership attention was focused on the executive mansion with the expectation that Governor Walton would define his attitude toward the meeting.

In the absence of an official statement doubt was expressed in some quarters that the governor would adopt the military measures by which he prevented the lawmakers from meeting at their own call on September 26.

From well-informed circles came the report that Aldrich Blake, the executive counselor, would not consent to such stringent action and some went so far as to say that as a last resort he would recommend that the governor himself call the legislature. What the executive could hope to gain by such a stroke, however, was entirely conjectural.

Women in Fight Now.

Meanwhile a new element entered the situation with the announcement by a group of women that they will join forces with Governor Walton in his efforts to prevent the legislature from meeting under the constitutional amendment passed in last Tuesday's election.

Incensed at the "sacrifice" made of a constitutional amendment establishing the eligibility of women as elective state officers in favor of the legislative amendment, the women declared last night through Mrs. R. L. Fite of Tahlequah, vice-chairman of the state democratic committee, that the women had employed counsel to press the governor's application for a permanent injunction to restrain the state election board from certifying the election returns.

They claim the amendment they sponsored failed because of the excessive interest displayed in the amendment which empowers the legislature to meet at its own call since it requires a majority of the votes to pass. Four other amendments were defeated by the enormous vote polled on the legislative question.

"We feel that the women have been sacrificed to the political controversy of the men," Mrs. Fite declared. "Our action is not political but women standing together for what we believe to be fair play for our sex."

Hearing for a permanent injunction on the governor's contention that the election was illegal inasmuch as it had been postponed by executive decree is set for next Tuesday.

The legislators declared last night that neither "whim nor force" will stop them since they had been called to meet by "command of the people."

Its passage in the election by such an overwhelming majority, the legislators said, makes the legislative amendment a law without the formality of certifying the election returns.

National grants of land in aid of education were first made in this country in 1803.

DEATH IS FINAL STEP FOR THREE REBEL CONVICTS

Besiegers find Prisoners Dead in Barricaded Quarters

AMMONIA GAS USED

Desperadoes who Claimed Life of Guards are Victims

(By the Associated Press)

PADUCAH, Ky., Oct. 6.—Three convict murderers who since Wednesday have had prison authorities at bay, killing three guards as they fired from the mess hall of the Western Kentucky state penitentiary were found dead today when the besiegers entered the bullet torn stronghold after flooding with ammonia fumes.

After the deadly gas had been turned into the barricaded cover of the desperate trio and all signs of life were lacking a storming party of seven men entered the building. All was quiet on the first floor and they moved cautiously to the second.

There they found the bodies of the mutineers who died with the blood of three prison guards, victims of the gunmen's automatic pistols when the break for liberty was made early Wednesday morning, on their hands.

Monte Walters, fully dressed, apparently had been killed by bullets fired during the siege. Lawrence Griffith and Harry Ferland, his companions, stripped to the waist, were dead from bullet wounds through their hearts. Griffith and Ferland, it was believed, died by their own pistols to escape the ammonia fumes.

The storming party entered the mess hall at 5:19 o'clock.

Authorities succeeded in entering the disputed barricade after a spectacular siege of 81 hours in the course of which prison guards, reinforced by two details of Kentucky national guardsmen, riddled the building with withering barrages of steel-jacketed bullets from high powered rifles and two machine guns. They swept the interior of the building with shrapnel formed by bursting rifle grenades and twice succeeded in placing tear gas in the building.

The siege wore on through successive days and nights without the authorities apparently having progressed in their efforts to dislodge the desperadoes.

Today 3 pounds of ammonia was obtained from Paducah and emergency pipe lines were laid to the beleaguered building by members of the attacking force. When this work was completed the ammonia, held under compression in heavy metal drums, was released. The "siege of Eddyville" was soon ended.

EDDYVILLE, Ky. Oct. 6.—The bullet torn two-story mess hall on the grounds of the Western state penitentiary was the center of a ring of death today. The fourth day of the "siege of Eddyville" arrived and the armed forces of the state of Kentucky were yet to invade the improvised fortress of Monte Walters, Lawrence Griffith and Harry Ferland, convicted murderers.

Since early Wednesday the three gunmen have held the barricade nor yielded in the face of machine gun and rifle fire that crumpled two gaping holes in the walls of the building, a bombardment of tear gas bombs and a barrage of rifle grenades.

OKLAHOMA CITY FREE FROM MILITARY TROOPS NOW

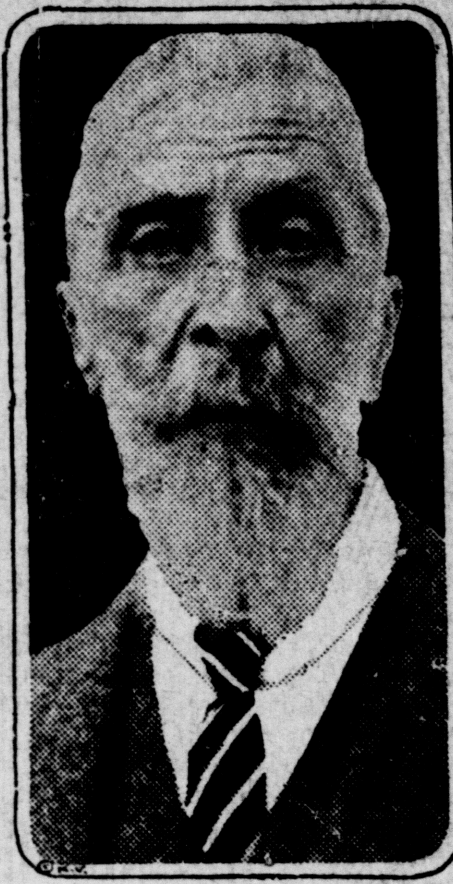

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 6.—The last troops on duty in Oklahoma City were demobilized today upon order from Governor J. C. Walton made public by acting adjutant general C. F. Barrett. About 125 officers and men were affected by the order.

General Barrett said that martial law has not been lifted. He said that troops are on duty in Sulphur, Shawnee, and Tulsa, where military courts are in session, but the number is nominal and their duties confined to activities as aides of the court.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 6.—Valuable finds of copper ore have been located in the Kashwitna section 40 miles from the Alaska railroad in the interior. It is reported here. A pack trail to the district has been opened.

NOTED HUNGARIAN STATESMAN WILL LECTURE IN U. S.

Count Albert Apponyi, photographed since his recent arrival in the U. S.

Count Albert Apponyi, recognized as the greatest statesman in Hungary today, has come to the United States to deliver a series of thirty lectures at the invitation of the all-American committee and the Institute of International Education. The lectures will take him to all parts of the country.

OKLAHOMA AGAIN IN FLOOD PATH

Railroad Bridges give way; Oklahoma City Street Inundated

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 6.—More rainfall in the watersheds of both the North and South Canadian rivers today threatened to force the already swollen streams to even higher stages tonight. Railroad bridges are out, lowlands are inundated, and Oklahoma City is again being flooded in the southern parts of the city.

Exchange Avenue here is under water for more than half a mile, street car service to Packtown over that route is suspended. The Walker street bridge has been abandoned and trolley passengers walk the ties to cars on either side. Indications are that the river which is still rising, will be two feet above flood stage tomorrow afternoon.

A Frisco bridge between Mustang and Tuttle has been swept away and Oklahoma City-Chickasha rail service is suspended. It is announced.

Preparations are being made by Rock Island officials to guard the Bridgeport bridge.

Near Tyrola, the M. K. & T. tracks were inundated for two hundred feet and passengers were being taken across in boats to trains waiting on the opposite side of the water.

Confederate Vets to Hold Regular Monthly Meeting

Members of the William Byrd camp, Confederate veterans are urged to attend the monthly meeting Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Convention Hall.

Captain Crow, commander of the local camp, stated that while regular business would be taken up at the meeting members should attend the meeting.

Sons and Daughters will also meet with the veterans and discuss new problems in their organization. A report will be received on the recent organization of the Daughters of the Confederacy here.

This will be the first meeting of the Confederate veterans following the Reunion here.

TULSA JUDGE FORBIDS KLAN ROW IN COURT

(By the Associated Press)

TULSA, Oct. 6.—Injection of the Ku Klux Klan into court trials was forbidden by police judge Edward Warren here today after he had abruptly ended a debate on the Klan between opposing counsel in a vagrancy case.

"I have tolerated a lot of it in the past," Judge Warren said, "but now I serve notice that Ku Klux Klan arguments are now and forever banned in this court."

Million Dollar Hospital to be Built in State

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 6.—An interdenominational Protestant hospital costing approximately $1,000,000 is provided for in a charter granted today by Secretary of State R. A. Sneed. The site of the hospital has not been selected but the institution probably will be located in Oklahoma City, it was indicated.

Eleven incorporators and directors, headed by W. B. Kennedy, president of the Rogers Lumber company of Oklahoma City, are named in the charter. All the men are prominent in the state.

No campaign for funds will be held, it was announced, as the directors have part of the capital stock paid and the remainder in sight, they assert.

TRADES DAY HAS RECEPTION HERE

Vast Throngs Flock City Saturday to Gather For Offering

Ada merchants as a whole benefited greatly from the gathering of the people of the city and country for the special trades day events of yesterday. In almost every instance sales were increased over the usual Saturday totals and weary clerks breathed a sigh of relief as the crowds wended their way homeward after a day of strenuous effort.

All lines of sales were effected more or less favorably by the great influx of country people intent on getting the benefit of special bargain offerings.

The Ford, although the center of attention for a short time, could not hold that place for the entire day and merely offered a few moments of respite to those who had served the visitors throughout the heat of the day.

Such bargains as were offered found favor with the buying public and many were the commodities which left the city in wagon and car.

All kinds of drygoods found favor with the customers, many of whom took advantage of the bargains and the day to do their fall shopping and to lay in the first supplies for the approaching cold weather. Grocers report increased sales and drug stores were popular resorts.

Soda fountain clerks especially found the day strenuous as the crowds came and went in an effort to relieve the aching void of thirst or hunger, or to indulge in pleasures not found in the country.

All day they came and went, buying, trading, visiting with one another and during the evening went away to another week of labor.

SCHOOL MATTERS UP AT TEACHERS MEET

The teachers of the public schools of the city met at the city hall Saturday morning in their regular monthly meeting with the superintendent, J. E. Hickman.

At the meeting the general status of the schools of the city was discussed and plans for the coming month talked over. A number of talks were made by members of the teacher body.

Miss Anna Weaver Jones discussed physical activities in the schools and announced that she was forming a class in which teachers may learn how to conduct such work in connection with their regular teaching activities.

J. L. German of the high school talked briefly on "English as I find it among freshmen in high school."

E. E. Emerson, principal of Hayes ward school, discussed to outside activities that may be taken up in addition to the regular teaching work.

The president of the school board, L. T. Walters, made a general talk on the situation of the schools in Ada and the part played by the teachers.

Flo Zierfeld, head of the Folles may use some of the wives of the former Sultan of Turkey for his dances in the Folles next year.

"I have tolerated a lot of it in the past," Judge Warren said, "but now I serve notice that Ku Klux Klan arguments are now and forever banned in this court."

In Virginia there were 13,338 cases of typhoid in 1909, and in 1920 but 2,493.

GOVERNOR WOULD HAVE SHOW-DOWN IN LEGISLATURE

High Executive Indicates no Evasion of Impeachment Issue

MANY CHANGES SEEN

House and Senate may see New Leaders; Clean-up in Legislature seen

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 6.—A call for an extraordinary session of the state legislature on October 11 for "the purpose of the enactment of a law to protect the people from masked and lawless marauders and secret organizations" was issued tonight by Governor J. C. Walton.

Simultaneously a statement was made public by Aldrich Blake, executive counselor, declaring that "the governor is ready" and that he is "eager to meet the legislature."

The governor's action was accepted as a challenge for a finish fight with the members of the legislature who have sought his impeachment and his advisors made no effort to hide the fact that they were preparing for the attack.

Counselor Blake declared that "the call indicates that martial law will be lifted soon." He declined to indicate details of any program that might look to that end. Martial law throughout the state was declared three weeks ago tonight.

The governor's call proceeds by less than a week a session summoned by a majority of the members of the lower house for October 17 at which a general investigation of impeachable state officers would be made.

The call indicated that evidence adduced by the military courts of inquiry throughout the state would be placed before the legislature to support the executive's demand for anti-Ku Klux Klan legislation.

Not to Hinder Fight

Governor Walton in a statement to the Associated Press declared that he "wanted to make it plain that no effort will be made to hinder in any way any attempt by members of the house" to impeach.

"It has been said in some quarters that I would try to prevent impeachment actions against me," the executive said. "I want to deny that emphatically. I am ready to defend my every action and I court the investigation of my office. I have nothing to fear and the only fight I will make will be to see that the truth is told."

Blake Makes Statement

Blake's statement follows:

"The governor is ready. At last the records of the military courts are coming. He has at no time exceeded his constitutional powers. He is not only willing but eager to meet the legislature."

"He awaits the verdict with complacency, satisfied that he has done no wrong and confident that within the next sixty days the Ku Klux Klan will be destroyed."

House members indicated that a caucus would be held tomorrow night and that until then no statement would be issued. It is understood that W. D. McBee, representative from Stevens county and a leader in the attack on the governor is slated for the speakership.

A canvas of house members here tonight led to the belief that Murray Gibbons, speaker of the house during the last regular session, would not be able to command enough strength to retain the place. Gibbons is a strong Walton adherent.

Observers were inclined to believe that the senate will present the same alignment as in the regular session, with Tom Anglin president pro tempore and Wash Hudson majority floor leader.

Comment of house members left the impression that the impeachment program would be entered upon before that outlined by the governor in his call.

"We will do some unmasking but we have more urgent work to do than proceed immediately to the Klan matter," Representative R. A. Singletary of Oklahoma county declared.

It is believed in well informed quarters that the legislature would clean its own house before starting an investigation of state officers.

"Members of the legislature who have been engaged in the pardon and parole business and who have been interested in state contracts must give an account of themselves," one member of the house declared who would not permit his name to be used.

HIGH PRICED TAXI DRIVER IN BIG FILM

A humble taxicab driver, who with one word sways the trend of a sensational murder trial, has a part to play that requires great acting, and that explains the highest priced "taxicab driver" who ever did a "bit" of only a few feet at the Universal City. This occurs in "The Acquittal," Universal's all-star Jewel version of Rita Weismann's famous stage play coming Monday to the American theater.

The taxi driver in the picture is none other than Hayden Stevenson, famous as the fight manager in "The Leather Pushers." It was too important a bit for any but a skilled character actor, hence Stevenson's temporary desertion of the Reginald Denny pictures to appear with Norman Kerry, Claire Windsor and the rest of the cast in the mystery play.

The story depicts a sensational murder trial, in which the evidence of each witness is pictured in action on the screen as the gripping mystery of the story unfolds itself. One by one, every character in the play falls under suspicion. "Who's guilty?" is the burning question until the very end of the picture, the final flash clearing the mystery in one dramatic moment.

The cast appearing in the mystery masterpiece is of special importance. Norman Kerry of "Merry-Go-Round" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" fame, plays the leading male role, opposite Claire Windsor, celebrated screen beauty. Harry Mestayer, a noted dramatic star plays the district attorney. Barbara Bedford, leading woman of "The Spoilers," is seen as a feminine villain, and Richard Travers, Ben Deely, Frederick Vroom, Charles Wellesley, Emmett King, Dot Farley and Anton Vaverka, who played the emperor in "Merry-Go-Round" make up the list of notable artists in the production. Clarence L. Brown directed the picture.

ROFF AND ALLEN PLAY HARD GAME TO A TIE

ALLEN—The football teams of Allen high school and Roff high school tangled on the local gridiron on Thursday afternoon of last week in one of the hardest games ever seen here. Neither team was able to gain much an advantage over the other, and at the end of the game neither had crossed the goal line. The visitors were the heavier team and it was freely predicted at the beginning of the game that they would play havoc with the Allen boys' defense, but such was not the case, the locals gaining about as consistently as the visitors. The game was marred with fumbling, both teams being guilty in that error, but since from that was a good one. The Roff boys showed as clean sportsmen, playing hard but playing a clean-cut game.

WHAT THEY SAY

Letter Describes Vacation Trip Taken By Me

DEAR FOLKS: Well we are all back from a wonderful trip and vacation. We left here Wednesday afternoon and took a boat from Honolulu at 5:00 p. m. for a 200 mile ride over night the boat was fine, none of us were sick although all felt a little wobbly the next morning at 5:30 I was up and sat on our cabin steps watching the islands as we passed along the coast. We docked at 7:00 a. m. then took an auto for a 35-mile drive up the gradual slope of a mountain 4000 feet above sea level and the city of Hilo, the island of Hawaii is the largest of this group and is larger than all other islands put together and is the size of Connecticut, 300 miles around it. There are two large mountains on the island over 13,000 feet high, which are very gradual in slope, running from the sea to the top. We went to the crater of Kilauea, which is in the slope of Mauna Loa. The army has a camp at this place. People come and go with an average of about six officers and families present. Also about 100. The climate is wonderful, cool and full of pep. In about two days I began to feel like my old self in the states. At night it gets cold enough so that a comforter and two blankets feel fine.

The whole island is formed of volcanic lava, some old and some new. Our camp was on the edge of a volcano, whose crater was 3 miles across and 700 feet deep. The bottom was filled with cold lava, which is like poor glass. Within this crater is another crater 1500 feet by 2200 feet across. A great many times this crater is filled with molten lava like a huge furnace. But about a week before we arrived there was a series of earthquakes and cracks broke in the side of the mountain 11 miles away allowing the lava to flow out covering an area of several acres. When we arrived this crater I speak of Halemaumau was dry and 700 feet deep. When alive this crater is the great sight. At all times clouds of steam and smoke pour out. Even when dry it is a wonderful sight. Not so beautiful, but massive, different, and unusual. Two days before we left, lava began to pour into the bottom from a hole in the side. It covered about a quarter of the bottom. We first went over and viewed it by night. That is a magnificent sight and nothing can equal it. The boiling red hot lava bubbling and jumping into the air 700 feet below. Then we visited it by day, but it was not so spectacular. The whole country is filled with smaller craters. One day I rode horseback 81 miles and saw about 12 old extinct ones. Some break out once in a while then go dead for years. Lava lies on the ground over the whole island. It finally breaks down and makes a fine soil.

One day we took a trip of 150 miles by car and saw lava in all stages. Near our camp we visited huge fern tree forests. The ferns grow from a trunk like a palm and often 25 feet high. Then there are the lava tubes. We went through one 400 feet long and the size of a railway tunnel, other tubes are hundreds of feet long. There are many different kinds of vegetation on this island I have never seen. Many of them are very unusual and all tropical. All are different than what you have there, or we on this island. I wish you could have been along. I saw huge groves of wild cocoanuts 40 feet tall with many nuts clustered about the top. Each day I took long walks and I came back tanned brown and felt fine. I hated to leave the island of Hawaii for that was a swell trip.

I will write another story soon.

HIGHWAYS STILL DUE MILLIONS COLLECTED ON AUTO SALES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Owners of motor vehicles pay to the federal government in taxes each year more than double the amount spent by the government on account of federal-aid highway and forest road construction, together with all administrative outlays, according to Secretary Wallace of Agriculture, who has charge of the administration of the highway funds.

Since 1917 the government has been collecting a tax on the selling price of motor vehicles, tires and automobile accessories, and also a tax on the use of passenger automobiles for hire. On June 30 this year $589,012,021 had been collected from these sources. Expenditures on highway by the government in that time totaled $264,782,216 or 45 percent of the amount taken in.

The possibilities of extending the cotton production of Brazil have been studied by an Anglo-Swili commission of experts.

SEPTEMBER SALES OF TOBACCO IN FRANCE SET NEW RECORD

PARIS.—The proceeds of the sale of tobacco in France during September totaled 147,000,000 francs, the highest figure ever recorded. During the first six months of the current year the total receipts of the French Government's tobacco monopoly amounted to 1,250,599,000 francs, as compared with 1,181,500,000 francs for the corresponding period in 1922. The increase in the receipts is not so much the result of greater consumption of tobacco but is due to the rise in the price.

BETTER ENGLISH USED IN BUSINESS WORLD

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 16.—The English of sales letters has reached a standard as high as the general standard in advertising and in Alta Gwinn Saunders, director of Business English work at the University of Illinois.

"I do not maintain that good English is the one test of a good letter nor that it is the most important element of a good letter," Mrs. Saunders asserts. "It is my contention that it is as important to the good letter as is any other element, and that a letter cannot be a good letter until good English is combined with a business mind, good character, pleasing personality, and knowledge of human nature in getting results."

"My definition of good English does not include slang, colloquialisms, or slouchy English sometimes used in letters that get results, but the English that conforms to the way writers of English ordinarily write and the English used in successful letters. This means the best language of daily life, that which is adapted to all sections of the country, and to good taste. It means English appropriate to the occasion, the subject matter, and the person."

"The categories of bad English are: Disregard of the elementary rules of grammar; inaccuracies of expression; stereotyped diction, and inflated diction. The main concerns of good English are: Good structure of the whole composition, paragraphs and sentences, and simple, plain, direct and appropriate language; English that is moral, social and artistic."

"Awkwardness and crudities are disappearing. There is growing up a free, plain, tradesman-like style becoming to the nature of its subject matter. There is a noticeable growth in the artistic quality of the descriptive and narrative parts of sales letters."

FORECASTS INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCES BY RADIO

LONDON.—The latest of the many forecasts as to what radio may accomplish in the near future comes from Lord Burnham, who recently has been considering the question of broadcasting at the direction of the postmaster-general.

Imperial conferences, at which the empire's premiers gather in London to discuss weighty matters, may be held some day through the air, Lord Burnham prophesies; the members of far-away parliaments could listen-in when the prime minister of England wanted to deliver an important speech.

"Why not?" asks Lord Burnham, "when radio has no apparent limitations and frozen-in Arctic explorers hear wireless concerts at a distance which a few years ago seemed unbelievable."

TRAINED POLICE DOGS GUARD LEAGUE RECORDS

GENEVA.—When Americans pass the main portal of the League of Nations building, which overlooks Lake Lemman, they often stoop to two enormous, beautiful dogs which recline there, docile and stretching their huge bulk out on the carpet in lazy satisfaction, blinking and acknowledging the passing hand of the admiring visitor.

Thus it is in day, but at night these harmless appearing canines become the terrifying guardians of the league temple with all its countless treasure of document and record. One is a great German dog lithe and powerful, the other a huge St. Bernard, and they go the rounds with the night guardians, running down this corridor and that poking their noses in a room here and a room there, seeking the possible illdoer.

Sir Eric Drummond, the secretary general of the League, is taking no chances with the wealth of documentary material committed to his care, and gives out that if men will go to the extreme of trying to steal rattlesnakes, as they did recently in New York, they might take it into their heads to lighten the historical archives of the League of Nations.

Data will be kept on crop and livestock management. "Shelton said." At present we have secured a good team of horses, a couple of sows and a cow. Other stock will be added as desirable animals are found. We are now are on the look-out for some good, producing white leghorn chickens. The poultry house is being built after a plan furnished by myself. The agriculture students of the Ponca City high school will do most of the carpentry work. It is expected that we soon will have an income from dairy products.

"In the next crop season I am expecting to get some reliable demonstration reports from this farm. We will try out the best varieties of wheat, corn and other crops, for this county. If the things we tell the farmers to do will pay, we can find it out in this farm; if not, then we can see why."

How many eyes does a spider have? How many legs? Into what two classes are spiders mainly divided?

Reading any good short stories these days? If your mother belongs to the Fortnightly Club get her to tell you one and then come to scout meeting with it and spring it on your patrol or troop.

Two very fine patrol leaders training classes met last week. Patrol leaders met the scout executive at his home, made spyglasses, waung sticks and Irons, pots claws, hakes, Galloway crook sticks, built a reflector fire, criss-cross, and hole in the ground fires. Sunday afternoon 13 scoutmasters and patrol leaders met at the same place and studied these exhibits, cooked twists, kabobs, and hunters stew.

Have you noticed the big poster near Knott's bakery? "Loyalty to our city costs us nothing and yields vast returns. Think about it." A scout is loyal. Practice it.

Mr. O. E. Parker owner of many bill boards in this part of the state has given during the year 15 big posters advertising scouting. The Pontotoc County Council appreciates this very much. Mr. Parker knows that scouting has the finest leisure time program for boys that there is.

Troop 2 had a great meeting last night. All scouts who had fire making apparatus brought them and tried to make fire. Mack Braly's was said to be the largest of those brought and required three or four scouts to operate it.

Clinton Van Curen was elected senior patrol leader of troop 7. Well if having pep has any thing to do with it, Clinton sure has it. We are going to expect him to set a fine example in order, scouting and scout conduct. Go to it, Clinton, and we are all for you.

Willie Laughlin was elected patrol leader of the Bob White patrol of troop 4 to take the place of Brown Mackin resigned. Brown is a fine scout and we are sorry to lose him.

Patrol leaders from nearly every troop of scouts in Ada met at Mr. Myers' home Saturday and hiked to Hunter's pasture where they made an altar fire place, a chair out of willows, towel racks, wash stand and many other things.

CATTLE DIE FROM MASH AT MOONSHINERS STILL
MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 16.—Deputy Sheriffs returning from the vicinity of Earlville settlement in the northwest part of the county reported that a number of cattle were found dead near where four stills were broken up yesterday. Officers believe the animals died from drinking mash from which whiskey was being made in the stills.

Careful Crooks and Careless Drivers

Auto Thieves Steal $100,000,000 in Cars in 1922.

ONE DARK night last year a small auto truck was driven into the alley behind the Philadelphia branch of the largest manufacturers of automobile ignition locks in the country. There was a quick manipulation of keys, handled expertly, and a back door of the establishment was open. A large folded sheet of cardboard was handed from the car and taken inside.

The cardboard, when unfolded, was an exact reproduction of the safe which stood under lights in plain view of the front window. It was but the work of seconds to set it up as a screen in front of the safe, and a safe cracker went to work on the combination in comparative security from interruption. In the meantime his companions unbolted a machine weighing hundreds of pounds from its moorings in the dark recesses at the back of the shop, and carried it out to their truck.

There was an almost unnoticeable explosion as the safe, which had proved stubborn, was blown; a hasty sorting of its contents; and the cracksman, disregarding apparent valuables, carried a heavy volume out to the car, which was driven rapidly away.

Thus was perpetrated one of the most daring and disturbing robberies in the history of American crime.

Missing a Rich Haul

It was aimed at no petty loot, such as two or three million dollars in bonds or currency. It was intended to place at the mercy of the criminal element of the country automobiles with a value of hundreds of millions of dollars.

The machine stolen was one of a half dozen in the United States used in making keys to the ignition locks on 80 per cent of the high grade automobiles manufactured. The book sought in the safe contained the code letters and numbers of each of these locks. Simply by looking at the number on the lock of any of these cars, and tracing down that number in the code book, keys duplicating the owner's could be manufactured.

Possession of these keys would not only make the actual stealing of these cars more simple, but would aid the organized bands of thieves greatly in disposing of stolen cars without suspicion.

The whole ingenious plot, to which the best brains of the criminal profession had evidently been dedicated, failed because a clerk in the ignition lock establishment disobeyed orders. Strict instructions had been issued that the code book, with its almost incalculable value, should always be locked in the safe when not in use. The safe had been locked for the night when this clerk, working late, went to put it back. Fearful of a reprimand for not having replaced it earlier, he did not telephone one of the heads of the establishment to return and open the safe, but trusted to luck to get it back next day without observation, and tucked it on a high shelf. Luck was not only with him, but with the establishment and the country's automobile owners. The "code book" which the thieves blew open the safe to obtain turned out to be an accessory catalogue.

The key-making machine has never been recovered, but it is useless without the book. The thieves mailed the catalogue back with a polite note of regret.

The failure of this gigantic plot did not prevent thieves stealing $100,000,000 worth of automobiles in the United States last year, according to a

The above row of figures was invisible until treated with heat and acid.

Motor Thefts Increasing

The police, despite splendid efforts, are unable to cope with the situation. Automobiles, and those who acquire them by other than lawful means, are increasing out of all proportion to the

ODD SIZED CARDS AND ENVELOPES CAUSE TROUBLE

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The Post Office Department has renewed its campaign against the use of small and odd-sized holiday postcards. Postmasters have been urged to seek cooperation of manufacturers, dealers and the public generally in eliminating the objectionable sized mail matter.

These cards will not pass through the cancelling machines and cause much annoyance to postal employees during the busiest season of the year. The department requests that no cards or envelopes smaller than two and three-quarters by four inches be used.

MAY REDUCE PAY OF BRITISH VET

Tommy Atkins Prepares to Take Strides to Cut Soldier's Pay.

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON, Nov. 16.—The drums of war having ceased to beat, Tommy Atkins is going to have his pay reduced. So are the sergeants and subalterns and captains and even majors in his Majesty's Army. The colonels and generals, however, will continue to draw their present salaries.

One of the members of the committee of three which recommended the reductions is a general. The committee said it did not think any of the services err on the side of paying their best men too much. The other two members of the committee are knighted civilians.

It is far from certain that these recommendations will be carried out to the letter. For one thing, there will be a long and loud protest raised against lower pay, but it is probable that, to some extent, the proposed reductions will be put in force.

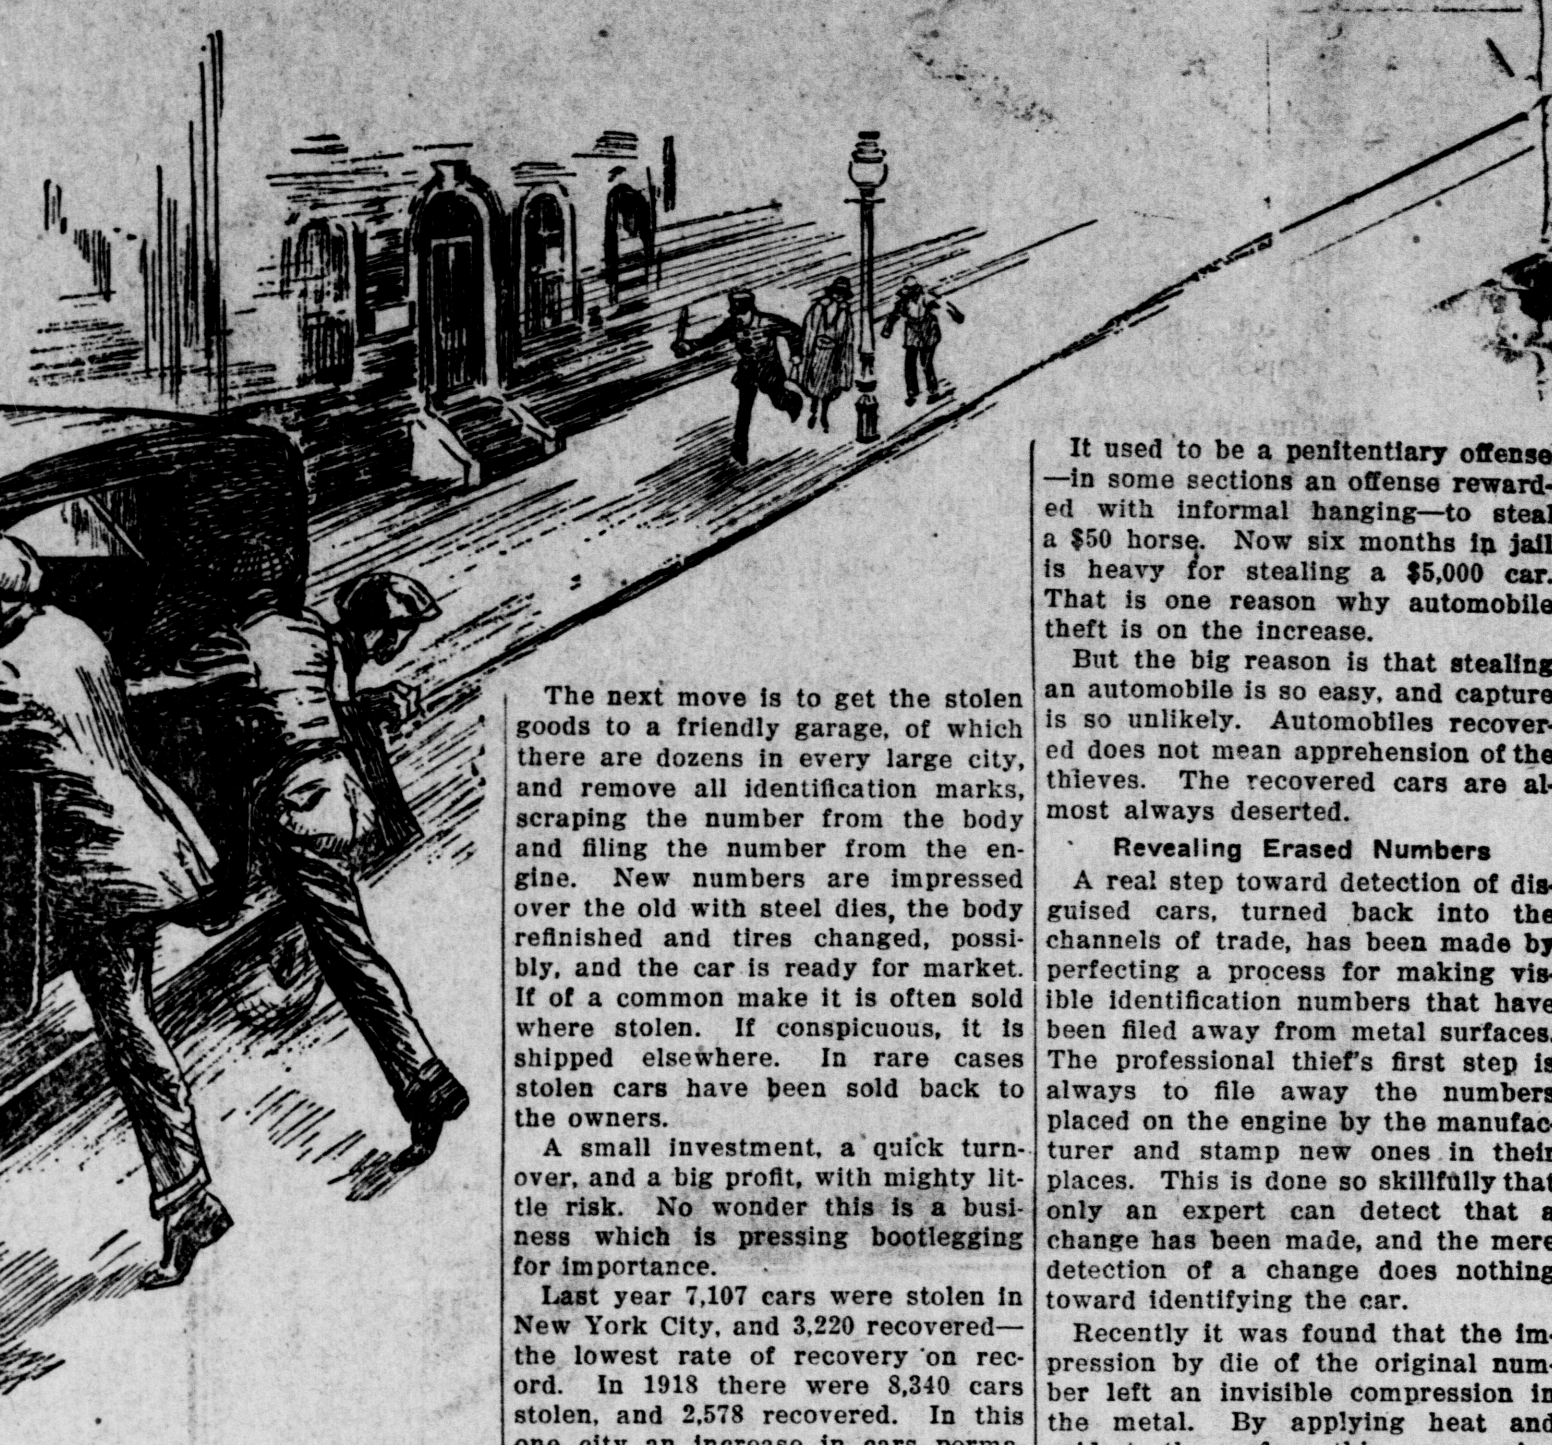

Privates now receive two shillings and nine pence a day to start on. The committee would reduce this to 1s 6d. Subalterns whose rank is comparable to second lieutenants in the American Army receive 13 shillings a day, which the committee would drop to 11 shillings. A captain's pay of 23s 6d would be cut to 21 shillings. Reductions in the navy and the air forces also are proposed, but only for those ranking below commanders.

The committee declares that the pay of an infantry recruit and of an ordinary seaman has increased 175 percent and 167 percent, respectively, above the scale of 1914. Before the war Tommy Atkins got less money than agricultural, engineering and building laborers, but now he receives considerably more. That is one of the chief arguments used by the committee.

The committee recommended also that the lower ranking workers in the civil service toil eight hours a day instead of seven. Their bosses, however, are not asked to extend their working hours.

Apprentices Attend Technology

(By the Associated Press)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 16.—Young men working as apprentices in the steel industry to the number of 65 have begun a four year course of training at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. The employers will pay them their regular wages while they attend school, which is one day a week.

he has not outwitted. He admits a preference for cars not locked—and there are plenty left that way—but made it a point to foil all of the locksmiths during his career, just as a matter of professional pride.

Laugh at Locksmiths

Gasoline feed pipe locks, steering wheel locks, chained wheels, transmission locks—they are all ploys to the experienced man, he avers. When he took a fancy to a particular car, protected by half a dozen or so assorted locks, his crew of hussies drew alongside with truck and trailer, like any honest working men, and trundled the "disabled" prize away under the eyes of the law. He did it once too often, but it worked for 20 years.

The next move is to get the stolen goods to a friendly garage, of which there are dozens in every large city, and remove all identification marks, scraping the number from the body and filling the number from the engine. New numbers are impressed over the old with steel dies, the body refinished and tires changed, possibly, and the car is ready for market. If of a common make it is often sold where stolen. If conspicuous, it is shipped elsewhere. In rare cases stolen cars have been sold back to the owners.

A small investment, a quick turnover, and a big profit, with mighty little risk. No wonder this is a business which is pressing bootlegging for importance.

Last year 7,107 cars were stolen in New York City, and 3,220 recovered—the lowest rate of recovery on record. In 1918 there were 8,340 cars stolen, and 2,578 recovered. In this one city an increase in cars permanently lost from 762 to 3,887 in five years! These figures are in the possession of the Aetna Life Insurance Company.

Borrowing Cars for Banditry

These cars permanently lost were the grist of the professional thieving organizations. They are traveling other streets, in altered guises. The cars recovered were largely "borrowed" for banditry or joyriding. Your up-to-date bandit seldom walks. He goes about his business in somebody else's gasoline buggy. In the trances in which he engages his license number is frequently taken, and this clue is of course run down, leading to John Smith, banker and church member. Smith's car is found by a roadside, usually the worse for wear.

It used to be a penitentiary offense—in some sections an offense rewarded with informal hanging—to steal a $50 horse. Now six months in jail is heavy for stealing a $5,000 car. That is one reason why automobile theft is on the increase.

But the big reason is that stealing an automobile is so easy, and capture is so unlikely. Automobiles recovered does not mean apprehension of the thieves. The recovered cars are almost always deserted.

Revealing Erased Numbers

A real step toward detection of disguised cars, turned back into the channels of trade, has been made by perfecting a process for making visible identification numbers that have been filed away from metal surfaces. The professional thief's first step is always to file away the numbers placed on the engine by the manufacturer and stamp new ones in their places. This is done so skillfully that only an expert can detect that a change has been made, and the mere detection of a change does nothing toward identifying the car.

Recently it was found that the impression by die of the original number left an invisible compression in the metal. By applying heat and acids to the surface, this compression was made visible in the form of the original figures. By use of this method the surest safeguard of the thief has been removed, and although the method has only recently come into use, hundreds of cars have already been identified and returned to their owners.

The pedigree of a used car should always be traced by the prospective buyer. The man selling the car may be honest, but one or two steps back of him a thief may lurk.

Bringing to justice the men who are getting rich in this business is the duty of every citizen. The police can't do it all. They have too much else to do. The first step is for the driver—the car owner—to be as careful as the thief.

Tigers Swamp Invading Aggies in First Game of College Grid Year

East Central's Tigers went out for slaughter and the Murray Aggies were victims to the tune of 61 to 0 in the opening game of the gridiron season Friday afternoon at the Park field.

With a machine that held no loose cogs from end to end and the four backs with no marks of deficiency, East Central settled down to see the terrific onslaught of the invading eleven with every phase known to football brought home to perfection.

Every man on the Tiger machine was doomed to gridiron stardom. Substitutes sent in to stem the mad rush of the Aggies fell in with the crowd and too displayed the suspicion that every man on the Tiger crew could deliver in true East Central style.

Coach Milam, mentor of the Tiger crew, played every man who donned a uniform for the opening game of the season and in the end found that they all delivered to his satisfaction.

In the line the true strength of the Tiger machine was noticeable. With Capps, Stegall, Craig on the stellar roles the entire line held to the man and held as a stone wall against any effort of the invading Aggie crew to penetrate. Time after time the Tishomingo crew fell back from terrific plunging of the Tiger line, leaving their back field to carry on the little defense work shown. Time after time Tiger line men nabbed the opposition runner before he had left his tracks.

Many Stars in Game

The sensational roles as seen by the spectators fell particularly to Johnson whose fleet advances brought the ball for long and repeated gains. Potts, was not to be outdone and worked on the line, walking through for long gains. He proved an able passer and punter. Cunniff started with his broken field running, darting for long gains around ends. Cunniff was efficient in adding extra points to the final score with his place kicks. Kelly and Montgomery showed up at quarter and through their pilot-ins, the team gained its ground consistently. Odell, Fleming and McCoy continued the dash of the Tigers during the time they tangled with the visitors and completed one touchdown during the part of the quarter in which they participated.

The aerial game was used to a good advantage by the Tigers in their first game. Long gains being terminated by this route. Potts was an able passer, Brents, Kratz and Rayburn ends with the backs snatched the offerings for long gains. Apparently Coach Milam plans to make the aerial route one of his channels for all-state supremacy this year.

With East Central's victory over Tishomingo Aggies Friday, the Tigers gained the advantage of dope over the Southeastern Savages, hereditary enemies. Southeastern shaved off a narrow score of 28-0 against the Aggies previously.

The Tigers were greeted by record crowd of football fans. College pep squads were all in active service and the air of true football spirit prevalent.

The following men were used by Milam: Cunniff, halfback, Fleming, halfback; Odell, halfback and quarter; Johnson, halfback; Potts, fullback; Kelly, quarterback; Brents, end; Kratz, end; Rayburn, end and center; Tabbythi, end; Montgomery, halfback and tackle; McCoy, halfback; Capps, tackle; Floyd, tackle; back; Lee, end; Craig, Troger, guard; Dorsey, guard; Shelby, tackle; Henderson, tackle; Stegall, center; Kerr, tackle; King, tackle; Gatlin, guard.

POLICE HANDLE BRAZIL PROBLEM

Servants in Brazil Regulated by Direction of Police.

(By the Associated Press)

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil.—The servant question in Rio, which has been driving the housewives of this city to distraction for years and years, finally became so acute that it was taken up, studied and "solved" by the Federal government.

The solution to this tormenting problem took the form of Decree No. 16,107, which delegates to the police the trifling matter of carrying the details into effect.

Before the decree was enacted, however, the servant question outstripped all competitors, even the high cost of living, in bringing worry into the average home. Servants came and servants went, but the question went on forever. Not only was it impossible to count on the presence of any servant from one minute to the next, but hundreds of homes found that their ingratiating, new employee of the day before was in reality an experienced and clever thief. One of the routine tasks of the police was tracing thieving servants.

On the other hand the servants complained that employers expected too much of them in time and kind of work, and that they were given no guarantees as to healthful working conditions and moral considerations.

For these and other reasons, decree 16,107 provides that all servants must possess cards of identification from the police. No servant can enter into employment without notifying the police and registering the terms of the agreement with the employers, nor can anyone employ a servant without registering the act with the police. The decree applies to domestic service of all kinds; cooks, butlers, maids, laundry girls, gardeners, nurse girls, seamstresses, waiters in hotels and restaurants, bar tenders, janitors and even office boys.

Whether servants or employers will be any better by effect of the decree, no one ventures to predict, but it is expected that the average time of a job will be longer than it has been, and that the servant disguise will go out of fashion among thieves.

Trapp, Governor of Oklahoma

Governor Martin Edward Trapp became governor a political figure whose character has never been successfully assailed has ascended to the highest position within the gift of the people of Oklahoma. That's the outstanding fact about Trapp, in this day of crumbling idols.

"If there was anything seriously the matter with Trapp it would have been found out before this, his friends reason."

"You know Oklahoma politics," they go on. "A man does not have to stand on his political record alone. If his personal record is weak in essential particulars he is soon disposed of. Look up and down the line of fallen political leaders. Half of them have dropped by the wayside for what they did outside their regular duties."

This doesn't mean that Trapp hasn't been assailed. He has, and more than one occasion. There are people throughout the state who are not confident that he will be a good governor. But it is unfair to say that even a quarter of the voters feel this way about it for they don't.

Trapp has his active personal enemies, like all other leading figures in politics. And many of them are sincere. A vicious attempt was made to throw him out of office of lieutenant governor during Robertson's term as governor. And an attempt was made later to have a grand jury indict him.

"But neither move succeeded," his friends point out. "You can be sure that if Trapp was wrong he couldn't have survived the political attacks of years."

And the records show that he has been a political leader for that. His political career may be said to date from 1904, when he was elected county clerk, as a Democrat, in Logan county, which was heavily Republican. It was an astonishing result. His majority was 1,111, while the county went Republican by 1650. Every heart in Logan county seemed to go out to a boy who had done his part so nobly in a well-nigh hopeless struggle with poverty. In 1907, he was nominated and elected Oklahoma's first state auditor, serving in that position until 1911, when he took up the business of bond broker and buyer, in which capacity, as a private citizen, he settled in Muskogee and achieved conspicuous success.

Enters State Politics

In 1914 he was a successful candidate in the Democratic primary and in the following election, for the office of lieutenant governor. He was again nominated and elected to the same office in 1918, and again nominated by his party as its standard bearer for this position in the recent August primaries.

As lieutenant governor his constitutional functions were to preside over the upper branch of the legislature and act as governor when the chief executive was absent from the state. During his entire public career, Acting Governor Trapp has given proof of such loyalty and devotion to his state and party as but few others in its chequered annals have been able to show. Not only does he display high qualities of mind and character, as a trained executive and legislator, but his genial smile, his cheerful disposition, and his broad human sympathies, all combine to impart an irresistible charm to a personality which is uniquely his own.

Oklahoma has served as a melting pot of varied and conglomerate elements out of which its present day citizens have emerged with characteristics when confer upon them the imprint and flavor of a distinctive type. An inspiring example of this type for the youth of Oklahoma is the present day governor, as he worked his way upward from humble beginnings with only such resources at hand as his head and heart could supply.

Father a Tenant Farmer

Born in 1877, on a farm in Kansas, of parents who had come from Missouri and Mississippi, Martin E. Trapp was the 10th child in a family of 11. His father was only a tenant farmer, and like many another man who had risen to positions of eminence in this country, this school of "hard knocks" seems to have produced in the child a character typical of American frontier conditions.

At the age of six, the parents moved to a rented farm in Nebraska where they remained six years giving their children, as best they could, the rudiments of such education as the country schools supplied.

At the opening, they came to Logan county, Oklahoma, where they settled on a blackjack farm. There the boy lived and had his being in a life of struggle and want until he reached the age of 24. He cleared and did all manner of farm work. At one time, we find him hounding wood to Guthrie with a yoke of oxen; at another time, handling a grub plow for the pitiful wages of 25 cents a day, all to procure a scant livelihood for the numerous ones at home.

In 1890, there was almost a famine in the land. There was nothing to eat and no money with which to supply life's barren necessities. In the winter, Congress appropriated $50,000 with which to relieve this distress, at which time young Trapp at the tender age of 14 years, was seen to stand in line, awaiting his turn to receive that pitiful largess which was deemed necessary to save these early settlers from starvation.

It was about 1893 that J. I. McDaniel, a farmer of independent means and benevolent disposition, employed Trapp as a sheep herder and becoming impressed with the boy, later took him to his home where he was provided with the facilities for a more extensive education than could otherwise have fallen to his lot. He went to Guthrie, entering a commercial college academic course. His later career was to show how well he deserved the affectionate care his friend and benefactor bestowed upon him.

Knows the Farmer's Problems

Trapp is not, like Walton, a professed devotee of the Shawnee platform. But neither is Trapp a hide-bound conservative. While he deprecates the entrance of the farmers, and any other class, into politics as a class, he at the same time conscious of the fact that farmers have many problems to meet, and he is open-minded regarding the solution of those problems.

Trapp is himself, it must be remembered, a product of the farm. When a lad of 12, at the 'opening,' he knew the bitter pinch of poverty and the untold toil involved in clearing and improving the tough blackjack country in Logan county. For several years young Trapp put a man's strength into the thankless task of carving a farm out of this obdurate country, and he knows, therefore, from sad experience, what the trials of the farmer are.

Trapp thinks the principal problem of farming is the distribution of the farmer's products, at less waste than that involved in the present most uneconomical system. But he feels there is little the state can do to help the farmer along this line. The problem is, national in scope, and then one of the education of individual farmers in cooperation.

Favored Warehouse Law

Trapp favored the warehouse law and the other farm legislation enacted by the regular session of the ninth legislature. He is not certain the state will be able to do much for the farmers through the warehouse law. But, as he figures it, something may be done, and the plight of the farmers is so distressing, and it would be of such vast benefit to all the state to make them more prosperous, that he feels the state is justified in gambling something. Even if the entire sum appropriated were lost the state would not be hurt to any noticeable extent.

Regarding national legislation, which he considers for more necessary, and potentially hopeful than anything the state can do. Trapp holds the same idea, that it is worth while venturing something on the chance of hitting the remedy. Trapp has no hard and fast program. He would probably say he would be ready to try anything on which the farmers themselves might agree upon, provided it did not involve too great an expenditure of public funds. Any reasonable experiment in national marketing would probably have his support.

How He Differs From Sweet

Out in Colorado the Democrats

elect a governor, William E. Sweet, who is probably the most radical who ever occupied high power in the United States. Sweet believes that the capitalistic system is a failure, and that it is necessary to replace it, step by step, as experience shows the way, with a co-operative system. It just happens that Trapp, like Sweet, is a bond dealer, and, if not as wealthy as the Colorado governor, is at least well-to-do. But Trapp doesn't believe the capitalistic system is done for. He thinks it is the best system yet devised by man, and that it could not be replaced, certainly not by anything we now know.

And yet, with regard to practical programs, Trapp and Sweet are not so far apart. The Coloradoan believes the revolution he desires can come only step by step, and his program for farm relief is a most moderate one. Trapp, on the contrary, who fears a revolution, believes it can be prevented only as those who like himself, believe in and have profited by the capitalistic system, take wise steps to extend more widely the participation of the masses of the people, and especially of the farmers, in the benefits of the present system.

Believes in Organization

Of course Trapp holds, as does Sweet, that the greatest benefit to the farmers can come only through their own awakening and organization. He feels, therefore, that the co-operative organization of the farmers is the thing that offers them most hope, and for that reason he will undoubtedly be found sponsoring anything the farm marketing organizations, such as the Oklahoma Cotton Growers' Association and the Oklahoma Wheat Growers' Association, asks in the way of legislation. More than he undoubtedly will, any time he is called upon to do so, lend the weight of his influence to urging farmers to align himself with these marketing organizations.

But Trapp knows too, from firsthand experience, how hard it is the lot of the tenant farmers and how a large portion of them are so ground down in poverty, so lacking in all ambition, and in all knowledge of what to do, that the difficulty of organizing the farmers is increased two-fold. Even with regard to the children there is no great hope, since they must spend a great part of their young lives in the cotton fields, and even in localities where there are up-to-date educational facilities, are in too many instances denied a chance to enjoy them as they should.

Has An Open Mind

Trapp is rather skeptical as to the ability of the state to do much for these people. As regards the parents he thinks the task almost hopeless. But here again Trapp's open-mindedness, and his personal knowledge of the need would probably induce him to champion a plan, if it did not involve at first too great a raid upon the state treasury, that would have as its aim the assistance of the tenant in securing homes of their own.

Trapp has been too busy making money as a bond dealer to do any deep study to what has been done in other lands in regard to solving, or attempting to solve, the tenant problem. But, unlike many business men he has kept an open mind. On few subjects he is dogmatic. He is willing to listen to the other fellow. And even the fact that a plan has never been tried before doesn't necessarily condemn it in his eyes. He is among those who realize the world has moved forward through trying new experiments.

So if a reasonable home ownership plan could be evolved, Trapp would undoubtedly listen to it. One such plan has been tried in Oklahoma, and has been proved a dismal failure—and Trapp knows all about it. So a new plan would find him undoubtedly doubtful as to its success.

But, as remarked above, if it were advanced confessedly as an experiment, without making too great demands upon the treasury and were safeguarded from the defects that developed in the first plan tried here, Trapp would probably be willing to give it a trial. And he wouldn't try to put spokes in the wheels, just to prove it, couldn't be made a success, either; he would undoubtedly be honest in giving it a fair trial.

To sum up, then the farmers of Oklahoma, when Trapp is finally seated in the governor's chair will have a chief executive a man who is in thorough sympathy with them who believes that the chief aim of government today should be to better farming conditions generally, and thus allay an unrest which he thinks is growing dangerous, and who will meet them halfway on any reasonable proposition they may advance.

He doesn't have any panaceas of his own, and doesn't in fact believe in panaceas, and perhaps that fact makes him a better friend of the farmers than a man who has some one particular reform in mind, which he thinks will solve all ills.

Grandfather an Evangelist

Trapp has just received a letter from T. W. Blackman, proprietor of Rockwood farm, at Weleetka, inquiring as to Trapp's grandfather. Blackman read, in the Tribune's story of Mrs. Trapp in a recent issue, that Trapp's grandfather was a Christian evangelist.

"I was brought into the church," Blackman wrote, "through the preaching of an evangelist named Trapp back in Missouri." He went on to say that the evangelist was William Trapp, who lived in Graham, Mo. Blackman was acquainted with the evangelist's son, Prince Trapp, and wrote to inquire if Trapp was a member of the same family.

He is William Trapp, who was known all through the Christian church in Missouri as 'Uncle Billy' was the grandfather of the new governor, and Prince Trapp is his uncle.

Newspaper Man Secretary

Newspaper men are usually selected for the secretaryships to governors. That is because they know how to handle a vast amount of detail work in the shortest space of time and most efficiently, and because they are uniformly trustworthy and pleasant.

Parker LaMoore, the young Oklahoma City reporter selected by Governor Trapp, is no exception to the rule which applies in state capitals throughout the nation. Or rather, if he is above the average in ability.

An insight into LaMoore's friendliness, and fairness came to light at the time Fred Dennis, the accused state banking commissioner, surrendered to Governor Walton. Although the governor hated the paper for which LaMoore—aad it is a substantial one—had been a reporter in the capital and reported the facts to him. He had a high regard for LaMoore, even if he didn't have for his paper.

And it is something to be able to remain on terms like that with the man your paper has centered all its big guns upon; take the word of another newspaperman for that!

LaMoore was born March 15, 1897, at Jamestown, North Dakota. He has worked as a newspaperman since 1919, having previously engaged in such work while attending school from 1914 to 1916. He was employed as Washington correspondent for three years, and for almost two years was employed as political reporter for the Daily Oklahoman.

McKEOWN LEAVES FOR NATIONAL CAPITAL

Congressman and Mrs. Tom D. McKeown left Friday for Washington where they will arrange the details of their affairs before the opening of Congress December 3.

The preliminary work of the two party organizations will be done next week in the caucuses and perhaps the program of the coming session tentatively mapped out.

The session promises to be of considerable importance to all concerned as the next presidential campaign may hinge to a considerable extent on the record made by this congress.

And he wouldn't try to put spokes in the wheels, just to prove it, couldn't be made a success, either; he would undoubtedly be honest in giving it a fair trial.

To sum up, then the farmers of Oklahoma, when Trapp is finally seated in the governor's chair will have a chief executive a man who is in thorough sympathy with them who believes that the chief aim of government today should be to better farming conditions generally, and thus allay an unrest which he thinks is growing dangerous, and who will meet them halfway on any reasonable proposition they may advance.

He doesn't have any panaceas of his own, and doesn't in fact believe in panaceas, and perhaps that fact makes him a better friend of the farmers than a man who has some one particular reform in mind, which he thinks will solve all ills.

Grandfather an Evangelist

Trapp has just received a letter from T. W. Blackman, proprietor of Rockwood farm, at Weleetka, inquiring as to Trapp's grandfather. Blackman read, in the Tribune's story of Mrs. Trapp in a recent issue, that Trapp's grandfather was a Christian evangelist.

"I was brought into the church," Blackman wrote, "through the preaching of an evangelist named Trapp back in Missouri." He went on to say that the evangelist was William Trapp, who lived in Graham, Mo. Blackman was acquainted with the evangelist's son, Prince Trapp, and wrote to inquire if Trapp was a member of the same family.

He is William Trapp, who was known all through the Christian church in Missouri as 'Uncle Billy' was the grandfather of the new governor, and Prince Trapp is his uncle.

Newspaper Man Secretary

Newspaper men are usually selected for the secretaryships to governors. That is because they know how to handle a vast amount of detail work in the shortest space of time and most efficiently, and because they are uniformly trustworthy and pleasant.

Parker LaMoore, the young Oklahoma City reporter selected by Governor Trapp, is no exception to the rule which applies in state capitals throughout the nation. Or rather, if he is above the average in ability.

An insight into LaMoore's friendliness, and fairness came to light at the time Fred Dennis, the accused state banking commissioner, surrendered to Governor Walton. Although the governor hated the paper for which LaMoore—aad it is a substantial one—had been a reporter in the capital and reported the facts to him. He had a high regard for LaMoore, even if he didn't have for his paper.

And it is something to be able to remain on terms like that with the man your paper has centered all its

AIR SERVICE IS HANDICAPPED NOW

Inadequate Funds for Support of Air Service Sounded in Patrick Report.

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—A frank statement of the "inadequacies" of the Army Air Service from a standpoint of personnel, finance, equipment and other essential factors was made today by Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Army's aviation forces in his annual report to Secretary Weeks.

"The peace organization of the Air Service," General Patrick said, "now bears no relation to the war requirements and affords little or no foundation upon which war requirements in either personnel or material can be built."

He added that the 1,061 officers allowed the Service as a result of the reduction of army commissioned personnel to 12,000 are "far short of requirements" and conditions demand "a substantial" increase in both enlisted and commissioned personnel.

"As a result of these various reductions and inadequacies the Air Service is operating on a basis which does not permit the fulfillment of its mission," General Patrick declared. "Any further reduction will result in greater deficiencies and only a substantial increase can enable it to meet the demands upon it. If the required number of officers were available, if the enlisted strength were adequate or if sufficient civilians might be employed the difficulties would not be so perplexing, but with continued reductions in every class of personnel, efficient operation becomes an impossibility."

General Patrick conceded the impossibility of developing a comprehensive airway system because of existing conditions in the service. He has been unable, the report said, to establish new flying fields or retain old ones established during the war in a way that would "stimulate commercial aeronautics" or "fulfill the strategic requirements of national defense."

"In this connection," the report continued, "attention must be again invited to the deplorable conditions which prevail at all air service stations. With the exception of a very few isolated permanent buildings the entire air service outlay was initiated during the war, pushed to hasty conclusion and designed to last from two to four years. These accommodations have now been in continual use since 1917 and while the maintenance costs mount higher and higher with each succeeding year the living conditions become more and more unsatisfactory. Langley Field (Va.) is the only air service station with an appreciable amount of permanent construction and even Langley has no barracks for enlisted men except the one building which Congress recently authorized. A complete reconstruction program is imperative and nothing short of immediate and general relief can be relied upon to meet the situation."

Funds Now Inadequate

One conclusion emphasized by General Patrick is that a program be adopted for the proper equipment of the air service. "It is considered that the annual appropriations for the support of the air service since the world war have been inadequate," the report said. "In view of the rapid development of aviation the requirements of continued engineering and research work constitute an imperative need while the shortage of aircraft occasioned by the lack of funds for replacement will shortly present an extremely critical situation. It is therefore urgently recommended that a program be adopted and adhered to until this service is properly equipped and on an efficient operating basis."

"Emphasis must be placed on the critical condition which exists with regard to major items of equipment, viz., airplanes, airships, and balloons."

"The great majority of the aircraft now on hand were produced during the war, are rapidly deteriorating and even when completely reconditioned, have but a very short life. Furthermore, 80 per cent of the airplanes are of an obsolescent training type unsuitable for combat purposes. It is absolutely essential that the purchase of new aircraft to replace that produced during the war and to offset the constantly increasing shortage, be undertaken immediately. Since it requires about 18 months to secure delivery after a contract has been executed, it is apparent that no relief from the present situation can be expected before 1926. Appropriations now being made for the purchase of new aircraft are insufficient to meet the requirements of even the present inadequate peace-time establishments of the air service."

The aeronautical industry of the United States, the report added, is found lacking, and, "unless such an industry can be built up in time of peace the wartime procurement program must fall far short of its goal. The solution of this problem lies in the development of commercial aviation through the timely enactment of suitable legislation and in the judicious expenditure of such funds as may be appropriated for the support of government aeronautical activities."

Germans Eagerly Resume Buying French Luxuries

(By the Associated Press)
BERLIN.—French wines, French perfumes and French food supplies of various sorts came back into the German market with a rush immediately after the announcement of Chancellor Stresemann that the passive resistance in the Ruhr was at an end. Bills of fare in prominent cafes and restaurants again are being written in French and all the signs declaring French and Belgians would not be served have been removed.

Most of the larger German hotels and cafes had extensive cellars filled with French wines. Much of this has been sold as Italian or Spanish wine during the passive resistance period, but the Spanish and Italian labels have now been replaced by French labels, and customers who have been clamoring for French wine are happier.

GIRLS WORK WAY IN SCHOOL LIFE

One Fourth of Self-Supporting Group Include Feminine Sex.

NORMAN, Nov. 22.—(Special)—One girl of every four enrolled in the University of Oklahoma is working her way partly or wholly through school this year, according to Emil R. Kraetli, secretary of the University. General conditions in the state have caused the percentage to be slightly higher this year than usual, Kraetli thinks.

Although stenographic work leads the list of things girls do to help pay their expense here, the occupations are many and varied. There are at present 50 doing stenographic work down town. The library comes next in the number of girls employed with twelve on the payroll. A number of girls want housework, and this requires no experience and is easy to find.

A great many advance students are assistants in the university, teaching or laboratory assistants or grading papers for the instructors. A few are tutors. Several care for children. Some play for the theatres and for gymnasiums. They act as models, mend clothes, and solicit for magazines.

Unless a student is highly specialized it is useless for her to try to make all her expenses here. Taking her regular school work she cannot possibly make more than $40 a month. The university pays 30 cents an hour for work the first year, and 35 cents thereafter. Those students who are carrying 16 hours university work can work but 100 hours for the University each month.

That helping to pay ones way at school does not hurt a girl socially, is proved by some of the most popular girls on the campus working, said Kraetli.

Beginning in August, applications come into the president's office, to the Y. W. C. A. office, and to the office of the dean of women for positions for girls for the coming year. With each application is enclosed a personal history of the girl, telling her ambition to get an education "at any price," her preference of work, and recommendations from high school teachers.

These applications are filed at the president's office and an effort is made to secure positions for the students. The Y. W. C. A. secretary, Miss Helen Ruth Holbrook and Miss Ethel Lyons, dean of women, co-operate with the president's office in helping to secure positions for the students. The students who apply for positions through the university are usually freshmen. Those who have had at least a year in school here, generally apply for their own positions or secure one before they go home in the spring.

There are more newspapers in Cairo, Egypt, than any other city of its size in the world, recent statistics show.

Oatmeal not Accepted as Animal Diet

(By the Associated Press)
LEIPZIG.—Oatmeal as a substitute for meat for the carnivorous animals of the Leipzig zoo has been tried out with interesting but not particularly successful results. Meatless days reached the zoo here some months ago, because of the high prices, the principal outcome of the experiment being, it has been noted, a decided falling off in the visit of the stork.

The lions and tigers and wolves became thin and ill tempered, and howled a great deal at night and howled again in the morning right after breakfast when oatmeal day after day was dished out to them. Furthermore, the fur of the animals according to the zoo authorities, has failed to thicken up on the vegetarian diet, as it should in the fall to form the animals' winter covering, and the pelts of most of them are so thin that the caretakers say they are trying to conceive some form of blankets or overcoats for their pets to keep out the chilliness of January and February. Only one little lion has appeared since oatmeal was put on the menu regularly in the place of meat, and the old mother lioness promptly ate that.

The bear, says the zoo superintendent, has not minded the oatmeal diet quite so much as some of the others of their neighbors. When the feeding of meat was suspended the bears faded away, and lost most of their playful manners much to the regret of the regular Sunday assembling of Leipzig children, but nevertheless every now and then a new little bear, or twins, appear within the bear enclosures. The Leipzig zoo is one of the main sources of supply for many German trained animal shows and frequent shipments are made from here to the United States.

The animal keepers contend that if they had an abundance of cream and sugar to add to the oatmeal possibly the beasts would soon relish their meals once more and that the stork would again begin to appear at regular intervals.

NEW PARTY POSSIBILITIES.

It is practically certain that at least one new party of some size will be in the field next year with the possibility of several smaller ones. Of course these will draw considerable numbers from the two old parties and may in that way exert considerable influence in the final result.

On the other hand, should a third party gain sufficient strength to carry the electoral votes of a number of states so that neither of the old party nominee would have a clear majority in the electoral college, another interesting situation will develop. In such event the election would go to the lower house of congress. Under the constitution each state has one vote and this one vote would be cast according to the party the majority of the delegation was affiliated with. In such a contingency Nevada with its one representative would have as much voice in the election as New York and Pennsylvania with the big delegations they send to congress.

Twice in the history of the United States the election has gone to the house. The constitution originally provided that each elector should vote for two men. The one receiving the highest number of electoral votes would be declared elected president, in case he had a clear majority, and the second man would be declared vice president. Washington received a unanimous vote twice and John Adams receiving the second highest vote was the vice president. When Adams succeeded Washington, Jefferson was his opponent. Adams received three more votes than did Jefferson, hence the latter was the vice-president. At the next election, party lines were drawn tightly and Jefferson's party decided to capture both the presidency and the vice-presidency. Jefferson and Aaron Burr of course received the same number of votes while Adams was a bad third. However, the friends of Adams controlled a sufficient number of states to make the vote in the house between Jefferson and Burr a tie and a serious situation resulted. For a time it looked as if the government might fall because a president could not be elected. In the end patriotism prevailed over partisanship and some of Burr's votes were switched to Jefferson and Burr became vice-president. The constitution was immediately amended so that each elector should designate his choice for both president and vice president, and the election of the vice president was placed in the senate which was limited in its voting to the two highest candidates so that an election could not fail.

The war of 1812 destroyed the Federalist party which had opposed it so that the Democratic party was for a number of years the only one. In 1828 four members of this party were candidates. All received some electoral votes but none a majority. Andrew Jackson was the high man with John Quincy Adams second. Henry Clay, who was either third or fourth in the race, threw his strength to Adams and he was elected. The Whig party was organized shortly afterwards which in turn was succeeded by the Republican, and party lines have been closely drawn ever since. It is not likely that another president will be chosen by a unanimous vote as was Washington.

The Tulsa Tribune tells of a man who blew into that city recently announcing himself as a carburetor expert employed by the government to give free service to owners of automobiles. Quite a few availed themselves of his services but it is said that the garages did a flourishing business for several days afterwards repairing the damage done by the "expert". We are unable to say whether the government has gone to such an extreme as to employ men for such work as this, but if it is true it is high time that such a system were abolished. Just why the nation should be taxed to pay salaries for such things as this is beyond our comprehension. Too many on the pay rolls already.

The drive on illiteracy in Oklahoma will give many a person who was denied educational advantages in youth a chance to at least get a start towards an education. Many a person has freed himself of the shackles of illiteracy after reaching mature years and merited the applause of all for his efforts. Being able to read and write means the opening of a new world to many. It might be well to remember that Andrew Johnson, who succeeded Lincoln as president of the United States, learned to read and write after he was married. With that start he kept going until he reached the highest place in the gift of the American people.

Senator Magnus Johnson, newly elected senator from Minnesota, has given notice that he wants to work hard when congress meets. He probably will find himself working extremely hard before he has been there long if he tries to put any legislation past Lodge and the other members of the old guard. However, it is likely that after a session or two Johnson's burst of energy will abate somewhat and he will be ready to drop back and take things easy.

Another German cabinet has fallen. Such a thing seldom happened in the good old days when the kaiser was the boss. As long as a cabinet member did his bidding he was safe.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION FEATURES OBSERVED HERE

The East Central State Teachers College and the Ada public schools are fostering physical education for both boys and girls. Saturday is national physical education day, and will be fittingly observed by Miss Anna Weaver Jones and her classes at the college.

Thirty-two states have adopted a physical education program and others are preparing to do so. This is not a new wrinkle or fad, since physical education is the survivor of many centuries.

The ancient Greeks divided their subjects of study into music and gymnastics. Each youth was trained in the Olympic games. The passage of time was even marked by these games, every fourth year being an Olympiad.

Physical education is necessarily an integral part of general education. The whole child goes to school, both body and mind. The American public school has until recently tried to develop the mind of the individual without thought of the body. The modern physical education program calls for games for all—for games which call into play the fundamental muscle groups involved in running, jumping, throwing and climbing; all form a large part of the program. Story plays, rhythmic-action plays, and running games for the very tiny tots; folk dancing, competitive athletics, organized games, and stimulating mass drills for the older children are the tools with which the teacher has to work.

Physical education also concerns itself with those muscle groups which hold the body in an erect position. The close relation between self-respect and posture is familiar to all of us. Physical education through games makes for the social and moral development of the child. The playground knows no race, class or social distinction. The best man for the position is the one chosen. Recognition and acknowledgment of the rights of others must be observed in all teamwork. Co-operation and teamwork are synonymous. Where but on the play field does the child learn the elements of true sportsmanship? The successful team is the one in which all the members are working together in close co-operation.

Furthermore, the physical education program concerns itself with the health of the child. It centers the attention on positive health habits. Physical activity focuses the attention of the child on physical conditions from the constructive standpoint rather than from the morbid side. Thus health education becomes an ever-present element in physical education.

Physical education is then that phase of education which concerns itself with the growth and development of the child. It aims to promote good health and those social and moral qualities that make for good citizenship.

Other countries have taken national action to extend physical education to their children.

Are you going to do less? It all depends on you.

Are the average boys and girls of today pictures of perfect health? Are they resourceful? Do they seek to be entertained? Are they provided with adequate and worthwhile occupations for leisure hours? Are we providing adequate opportunity for the promotion of these opportunities?

Cautious Former Prince Of Bavaria Favored for Leadership in Monarchy

(By the Associated Press)
MUNICH.—Former Crown Prince Rupprecht is the chief reason why there will not be any hurried attempt to reestablish monarchical rule in Bavaria while all of the rest of the German republic is still under democratic rule.

All the Hitlers and von Kohrs who can be assembled in Munich apparently cannot induce Rupprecht to make a trial for the restoration of the Bavarian throne. He has no desire to repeat the performance of the late ex-Emperor Karl in Hungary.

Rupprecht is a loyal Wittelsbach and would like to see the monarchy reestablished in Bavaria if he thought there could be any permanence to such a restoration.

But he has learned a lot about European politics in the 54 years of his life. He had a good record in the war, and came through it pretty well convinced that the days of the Hohenzollerns were numbered.

His first wife was a sister of the present queen of Belgium. After her death he became engaged to Princess Charlotte, of Luxemburg. But that engagement was cancelled before she succeeded her deposed sister as grand duchess. Rupprecht afterward married the younger sister of Grand Duchess Charlotte, the Princess Antonia.

But his experience in his military campaigns in Belgium and Luxemburg and the international complications which speedily arose when there was a prospect that the ex-crown prince of Bavaria was likely to become the husband of the ruling monarch of little Luxemburg gave him a pretty definite idea how the entente powers feel about the restoration of deposed monarchs of the central powers to their old strongholds.

Then Rupprecht, though a soldier is actually a peace loving man. He enjoys living quietly, and is not at all fond of display and excitement. Rupprecht is the idol of the Bavarian public. Even the anti-monarchists have little to say against him. There is no other prince who can replace him in the affections of the Bavarian people. He has two sons, one 21, and another several years younger, and several daughters. So the succession is well-provided for and he can afford to await developments with patience.

Politicians sputter and threaten all over Bavaria. Ambitious ones who would like to head the cabinet under King Rupprecht. Monarchistic papers always call him king. He is hailed as king at political meetings. His health is drunk as monarch of Bavaria the length and breadth of the effervescent state which has never been happy under Prussian control.

Bavaria's unrest is not new. The Hohenzollerns were not liked any better than is Ebert's government. There are religious and temperamental differences which make it impossible for Prussia and Bavaria to like each other. Under present conditions there are enough communists and extreme socialists to make it hazardous for the conservative elements to have splits into divers factions.

The so-called Fascisti elements stand with Prince Rupprecht and he stands with them. They have no other candidate for the throne and he is too canny a politician to try being a king on a little island surrounded by an ocean of democracy and standing under the shadow of unsettled reparations.

France has spared no efforts to encourage monarchism or anything else in Bavaria which might tend to the disruption of Germany. Many Bavarian leaders have been attracted by propaganda for an independent Bavaria. But Rupprecht very clearly does not forget that the German Empire did very well under the plans outlined by Bismarck and is in no hurry to be the first king to make an attempt to smash up the German reich.

Office hours 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.; 7 to 8 p. m.

The Inter-State Doctors who have been established in Muskogee, Tulsa and other Oklahoma cities for more than six years, have decided to open permanent offices in Shawnee.

They have had many patients from Shawnee and vicinity. They have hundreds of testimonials on file from reputable citizens of Oklahoma and surrounding states.

CITY OFFICIAL

Writes of Inter-State Doctors

The following from Mr. Haltermann, who was formerly a well-known railroad man, and afterward broken in health, became city jailer of Coffeyville, Kansas, should be of interest:

"Coffeyville, Kan.

"I had been afflicted with a general catarrhal condition since childhood, affecting my head, stomach and bowels. During that time there were many months when I was unable to follow my work and I have treated with many doctors. I began taking treatments of the Inter-State Doctors and after one month's treatment with them I felt better than I have for many years. I cheerfully recommend the Inter-State Doctors to anyone suffering with catarrh or stomach or bowel trouble."

"J. E. HALTERMAN."

It might be of further interest to note that Mr. Haltermann was confined to the Missouri Pacific hospital at St. Louis for five months.

Not the least of the success of the Inter-State doctors is due to their facilities for examination and correct diagnosis. Thousands of men have been relieved from the embarrassment of some hidden disease. Many have been cured in one office treatment (such as varicose and other enlargements).

They have made a special study of all intravenous (direct to the blood stream) methods. They are prepared to administer the genuine French 914 and 606.

Consultation and examination are free.

The diseases treated by the Inter-State Doctors are all chronic diseases of the blood; nerves, kidney, liver and stomach, including catarrh, rheumatism, indigestion, constipation, nervousness, loss of nerve force, goiter, gall stones, diseases of women and diseases of men.

Office hours are 9 to 5, evenings 7 to 8, Sundays 10 to 12 only. The Shawnee offices are at 120 1/2 East Main street over Quality Drug Store.—Adv.

DOUBLE CHRISTENING
IN FORD CAR FAMILY

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 25.—There's been a double christening in the Ford car family.

When the newest member, a smart sedan with two doors, arrived on the scene, announcement of which is just made, there came with it the question of a name.

For several days the folks just couldn't decide what to call the baby of the new family until, from an unexpected source, there came the happy suggestion.

"Let's name it Tudor."

And Tudor it was christened, a name quite in keeping with the aristocratic appearance of the new car.

"How about re-naming the other sedan?" Some one asked and then came this reply.

"We might call it the four-door Ford or—Ah, that's it! Ford—or, Fordor. Simple and expressive, isn't it?"

So we have two Ford cars with brand new names, the Tudor and the Fordor.

The general staff of the war department has prepared tentative plans for the mobilization of about 4,000,000 officers and men at their home stations sometime next fall.

If carried in effect, these plans will mark the first important mobilization under the national defense act.

SEEK RELIEF IN
ALASKAN MENACE

Strict Inspection of Prospective Laborers Now Decreed.

(By the Associated Press)

ANCHORAGE, Alaska,—Legislation compelling rigid examination of employees to be sent to Alaska for the salmon canning season was recommended in a federal grand jury report made recently to Judge E. E. Ritchie at Valdez, Alaska. The report recommended that prospective employees should be examined at the port of debarkation to ascertain if any are drug addicts or afflicted with communicable diseases.

The report states that the use and sale of narcotics during the canning season at Bristol Bay, Alaska, is rampant; that cannery workers suffering from social diseases in aggravated form were permitted to work in packing fish; that degeneracy was in evidence and quite common, that the carrying of revolvers was general, resulting in crimes and violence.

In a blanket indictment of the class of employees imported each season for cannery work, the grand jury reported that ex-convicts and narcotic addicts offer the most serious problem affecting the salmon industry. The grand jury report said in part:

"Many of these matters and conditions demand legal action and prosecution, but this grand jury did not convene until after the cannery crews had departed from the fishing fields."

"We recommend that legislation be enacted to require canneries and contractors to furnish their employees with a sufficient supply of wholesome food and sanitary living quarters during their labors; that the Alaska legislature enact such laws as will compel canneries and cannery contractors to pay their employees in money at least once a month; we further recommend legislation that will require canneries hiring men in the States and bringing them to Alaska to return such employees to the port of departure in the State, as number of men are left behind in Alaska by these companies with no adequate provision for their support and transportation outside."

Bootleggers have been placed in the extra-hazardous class by a Philadelphia insurance company.

Great interest is being shown in the state wide membership drive of the American Legion which was launched for a period of thirty days, beginning November 15th. Several posts throughout the state have already exceeded the membership which they had for 1922. Thousands of legionnaires in the department of Oklahoma are lending their every effort toward making the drive a most intensive and successful one.

The objective of the Oklahoma department of the American Legion is, twenty-five thousand members for 1924, and their slogan is "Over the Top in Thirty Days." Department Headquarters announces that the objective of twenty-five thousand members will no doubt be reached within a short time.

William Doyle, department commander of the American Legion in the state of Massachusetts, and a delegation of legion commanders from various points in the country, called on President Coolidge recently, and after their conference, reported that the president can be depended upon to support the Adjusted Compensation Measure which will be considered by the National Congress at their session which convenes during the month of December this year.

President Coolidge, while governor of Massachusetts, signed a state bonus bill which was one of the first compensation measures effective in the United States.

The quartermaster general of the army is now engaged in disposing of thousands of dollars worth of surplus property which was purchased during the recent World War. Auction sales of property and equipment have recently been held in Camp Dix, N. J., Brooklyn, N. Y., and, during the month just past, sales have been held in Chicago, Ill., Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and San Francisco, Calif. These sales included items of clothing and equipment, general supplies, textiles, in fact, everything from tent posts to garden hose, conduit cans to combat wagons, life rafts to electric motors. None of the materials were sold by negotiations to individuals. Ex-service men were required to bid on quantities in the same manner as the general public.

The Civil Service Commission reported to President Coolidge recently that more than sixty-three hundred veterans of the world war had been appointed to federal positions under the veterans' preference act. This preference act was passed by congress in 1910 and approximately two hundred and fifty thousand claims for appointments to classified positions have been allowed to veterans. Of this number, approximately one hundred and sixty-five thousand ex-service men have passed civil service examinations.

Warning that the time limit within which applications for the Maine state bonus must be made will expire January 1, 1924, has been made by the adjutant general of that state. Requests for blanks may be made to the adjutant general's office at Augusta.

That the American Legion should continue the "Big Brother" movement was one of the striking recommendations made by W. P. MacLean, retiring department commander of the American Legion, Kansas, and a well known boys' worker. Mr. MacLean recently appeared before the National Refiners Home committee and outlined the policies which he believed the legion should pursue. As head of the boys' industrial school he has received assistance from many posts of the legion in Kansas in sending the boys for short trips, supplying them with band instruments and sponsoring their movements toward the development of the delinquent boys in proper channels.

In view of the constant dispute as to how former service men stand in the Veterans' Bureau when personnel must be reduced, Director Hines has repeated the following order to all district offices:

1. Ex-service men and women are to be retained if their records are good.
2. Other employees will be retained on a basis of comparative efficiency. Where records are equal, the service of the employee least necessary will be dispensed with.

BABY HAS 56 FOSTER MOTHERS
COLLEGE REARS BY SCIENCE

(By the Associated Press)

CORVALLIS, Ore., Nov. 23.—Rowen Robert, aged eight months will have 56 young women as foster mothers before the present school year ends at Oregon Agricultural College, for he is the living subject of experimentation in the "practice house." Reared by science since he came to the practice house last April, Rowen Robert now weighs something over 17 pounds. The care and feeding of this baby are in the hands of girl students under the direction of Miss A. Grace Johnson, professor of household management.

Two groups of eight girls live in the practice house every school term. They receive practical training in every branch of household activity, including that most important one—raising a child.

BERLIN DOUBTS TEARS
IN JACKIE COOGAN FILMS

(By the Associated Press)

BERLIN.—The weeping policeman in Jackie Coogan's film, "My Boy," is too much for German imagination. The German film fans know that a German policeman couldn't weep and are very skeptical about the ability of an American "cop" to shed tears. They even doubt whether one of the brass-buttoned bluecoats across the Atlantic could be moved to tears by Jackie Coogan's many film trials and tribulations.

If the policemen in America are as tender-hearted as the big fellow who weeps when he is forced to arrest Jackie Coogan for law-breaking, one of the Berlin newspapers says it must be a fine place for criminals.

But the weeping American policeman doesn't keep the crowds away from "My Boy," and thousands of German women are going to see Jackie again and again for the purpose of having a good cry over his plight. Some of the film critics have some hard things to say about American sentimentality, but the German public seems to enjoy it immensely.

Use of Dairy Products Grow
WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Forty-nine gallons of milk, 16.1 pounds of butter, and 3.8 pounds of cheese were the average consumption of dairy products of each person in the United States during last year, statistics of the Department of Agriculture show.

Use of these commodities showed an increase over all previous years. It is estimated that a little more than one-fifth of the total money paid for food last year was spent for dairy products.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

New Roadster

Business men—with whom the runabout has always been very popular—are well pleased with the changes embodied in this model. Always rugged, the car has been made decidedly trimmer and more comfortable.

This result is obtained by raising the radiator and enlarging the cowl, making a decided improvement in looks and providing more leg room.

A well designed top and slanting windshield do their share toward adding a finished, clean-cut appearance.

Make it a point to see the other new models also on display in the nearest Ford dealer's show room.

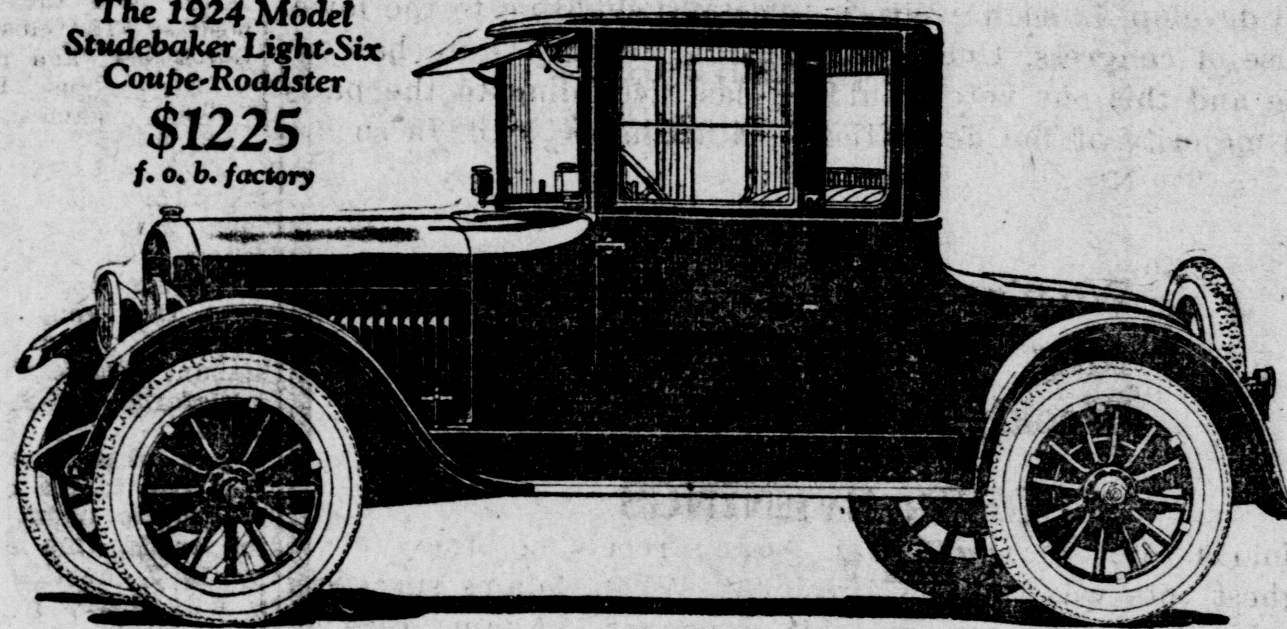

These cars can be obtained through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

Changing Motor

Oil

Carbon and gasoline dilution, dirt sucked through the breathe pipe and impurities already in the crank case, eventually make the best of oil unfit.

Even though you find it necessary after a hard drive to add a quart of oil, you should have a complete crankcase change every 500 miles to insure perfect lubrication.

The slight added cost is more than made up in lessened repair bills.

We have a grade of lubricating oil for every type of motor.

Ada Men Have Bumpy Time As They Loblolly Their Way To Oil Well

By W. D. LITTLE
In the beginning I want it distinctly understood that I am not attempting to write a story in keeping with the general rules of reporting. On the contrary, I am starting in on one of these magazine stories like some of the fellows write, where they are not bound down by leads, summaries, time, place or person. This story is to be a chronological review of my attempt to see the latest oil strike in Pontotoc county. For fear that you may labor under the wrong impression, however, I will state in the beginning that the oil is there. It is everywhere there, and I want to see the color of a man's pants who can go out there and come back without getting it on him.

With the fire of a cub reporter I rushed C. E. Cunningham into the modest roadster of more or less famous make. The day at that time had not advanced far, and in fact the sun had little more than made his appearance over the eastern horizon as T. O. Cullins and William Shakespeare would say. We started out feeling fit and were kidding ourselves that we were about to blossom into real oil men, that is men living in the vicinity of a giant field. We are still of this opinion, though we have decided the oil is several hours farther from Ada than we dreamed of last night.

The Ford trotted along at a pretty good pace, regardless of the fact that one of the numerous lungs was missing a breath now and then. Taking the advice of those we believed to be friends, we turned west at Latta schoolhouse. Let me say here in passing that I have decided sooner or later every one is a liar about something, I mean every one except the fellow who is reading this. Don't think for a minute that I would infer that you, personally or collectively, would for any paltry amount exaggerate, or otherwise misinform the unsuspecting genus homo.

But when I considered making that trip to the oil fields, I began to inquire about the condition of the roads. One advised me to go by Roff, another by Vanoss and a half dozen by Latta and then west. Taking the law of averages, I chose the course of most advice. If you contemplate making that trip, take a tip from me. Ask what is the best road. Put down the number of people who tell you to go by Roff, the number by Vanoss, and the number by Latta. Run up the figures, and then by all means take the route advised by the fewest. It is the only safe plan I know of. In fact, I can most heartily recommend that course.

Trip Sore Duty
We rambled along until we were sore lengthwise, crosswise, longitudinally and horizontally. Then with a severe jolt we went into a hole on the long upward pull. The old Henry sprung a leak and the gasoline began to saturate terra firma to our utter amazement and consternation. Cunningham then took over the leak while I rounded a peg and inserted. This stopped the leak. We had some baling wire, the accepted tools and equipment of a motorist, and I took one one-millionth of an inch being large enough to stop the gas flow. With the advice and assistance of a Christian—I am sure he was for he assisted cheerfully and without charge—a jackcrew and a few boulders, we reached the top of the hill, only to dive headlong into a hole so deep that it took the combined efforts of the two best horses in that section to take that Ford roadster to firm ground again. This little spree cost two bucks, eight good sized want ads. Realizing that Cunningham would not have time to shine his shoes before Sunday School tomorrow, I tried to keep him out of the mud, and not. If you see mud on his shoes today, complain to me, not him.

Roadster Proves Lungsless
Another one of the roadster's lungs gave way, and the two remaining ones wheezed along at a rapid pace. In order to get along faster, we changed the feeding system of the motor and he insisted on racing only by spurts. Finally we spurted into the yard overlooking the oil country and let the old boy cool off and see his tin supply back in order.

But it was worth the trip to see oil, oil, oil everywhere. It's black, as black as the sorghum molasses I used to eat when a kid, and looks quite like it. In fact, I believe if we had had that oil on the farm back in Carolina, we could have told the negroes it was sorghum mixed with fat pork gravy and they would have eaten it and waxed fat and sleek.

Not being oil men, we were unable to tell just what the well will produce, but there is enough oil in storage to bring a goodly sum of money. The drillers were cleaning out from the bottom, getting the hole in shape for pumping or flowing. The drillers say they baled 70 barrels out of the well in 50 minutes without lowering the oil. At that rate you must admit it is something of an oil well, and for Pontotoc county it is a culmination of a beautiful dream we have been having. I wanted Harry Morris there to estimate the well for me, but the hour was too early for Harry, possibly. At any rate one well Harry drilled northwest of Allen is the only well in the county which I have seen so greasy.

Real Oil Found

I believe there is no doubt that Clark & Gilbert have uncovered a real oil pool. I am not boosting any one's leases, and do not know and don't care who has them. If any one is in doubt about the well, he ought to go out and see it.

Coming back, we took another route by Vanoss. In places this is pretty fair, and in others it is like the other road except more so. I understand the Roff route is the best. In fact, I am certain it is the best.

These roads remind me of what the fellow said in a small town when asked the best place to eat. The townsman replied, "It does not make any difference which place you go; you'll wish you had gone to the other." Roff has built a good road from Roff to Lightning Ridge, the oil men report.

Along by Center, we thought our troubles were over. Then suddenly the front spring gave way, and we found the boy setting on the axle. The baling wire with a piece of timber put the body above the tires, and we navigated the distance to Ada, baring several more fixture accounts. Charley Laseman is building a good road across the Springbrook bottoms, but just now it is so rough teeth are often extracted from the virulent shaking. This is rumor.

But we are back. The Ford is in the garage. Cunningham, I hope is going to Sunday school and the oil well is a real oil well. There you have the story.

War Hatreds Still Alive.

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON—It is too soon to expect the end of racial antipathies engendered by the war, in the opinion of the rector of a small town in Norfolk. He recently learned a lesson that was pointed and convincing.

Wanting to embellish a war memorial in the town with some carved figures, the rector took it upon himself to order the work done. In due time the figures arrived and were installed. Then the trouble began for it was learned that the figures had been carved in Germany. A storm of indignation broke upon the head of the rector. He appealed to his church superiors for support, which was not forthcoming, and then retired as gracefully as might be for his impossible position.

In proportion to its weight, a bird's wing is 20 times as strong as a man's arm.

First Baptist Church
Our Sunday School begins at 9:45. We are hoping to go far beyond what we had present last Sunday. The attendance then was 437. Let's go beyond five hundred next Sunday.

The Men's Bible Class will meet at the McSwain Theatre at 9:45. Mr. Huber is the president of the class and Mr. U. C. Dixon is the secretary. Mr. Ellison will teach the lesson. All men are invited to be present.

The pastor will preach at the 11 o'clock hour. We will have a special service for all old people seventy years of age and beyond. It is hoped to have a large number of them present. If any one knows of an aged person who would like to attend, please call Mr. J. C. Hynds or the pastor and a car will be sent for them and they will be carried home after the service.

The B. Y. P. U. will all meet at 6:30. Senior No. 1 will meet in the main auditorium of the church, main church auditorium. The Blue and Gold will meet in the basement of the church, Mrs. J. C. Hynds is

(By the Associated Press)
HEIDELBERG—Germany is to have a modern history based upon developments from the time of the French revolution to the outbreak of the world war.

Criticisms from democratic sources that present day instruction in history was still subject to the old ideas of militarism, brought about the decision of the government to publish a book more properly suited to teachers and instructors and school classes in the new republic of today. A prize for the acceptance of work has been offered by the minister of the interior, and Germany's best known professors of history have been appointed as judges.

If we showed you our full stock of Coopers Klosed Krotch Union Suits, you'd say we have a lot; yet for every garment here, we wish we could have gotten two.

If you've never had a change to inspect one, or if you've been told there's any other union suit that's like it, come in and actually SEE a real Kenosha Klosed Krotch garment.

Take it in your hands.
Look it over.

Note the many points of extra wear and better fit.

Then you'll realize that every box of Coopers is a sure investment in three years of solid comfort.

The Secret of Three-Season Wear

The finest, firmest, strongest threads are used in making every garment. The points of greatest stress and strain are double-woven. The wrists and ankles are close-knit and elastic—they can't grow loose or baggy. The buttonholes are triple-sewed and tear-proof. The buttons are sewed on with 20 threads instead of 10 or 12. Each seam is reinforced, AND—in the back above the seat, there is an extra eight-inch tape-sewn reinforcement!

HIS MINISTRY IS DESTINED TO FALL AS BULGARS REVO

Premier Alexander Zankoff.

The present revolt in Bulgaria, heralded by the march of 100,000 peasants on Sofia, the capital, a few days ago, sounds the doom of the Zankoff regime, European political experts believe. Zankoff took over the reins of government after Stamboulisky was assassinated following the overthrow of his cabinet. The present revolt is referred to as an agrarian one and not a communistic one.

THE PIANIST CLUB MEETS

The first meeting of the Pianist's Club was held Saturday afternoon, October sixth at the home of Mrs. W. A. Hill 20th and Belmont. The following officers were elected: president, Edna Mae Gregg; secretary and treasurer, Margaret Chilcutt; corresponding secretary, Melba McCoy; club reporter, Lourice Core; chairman of the program committee, Melba McCoy.

Roll call was responded to by members playing scales. Following this each member rendered a piano solo. Delightful refreshments were served and the club adjourned till the November meeting.

FORTNIGHTLY STUDY CLUB

The Short Story Department has already cast aside her swaddling clothes and in point of interest is keeping step with her older sister the Modern Drama Department. Members who had visited in the East remarked upon the resemblance of Mrs. W. A. Hill's home to "The Old Manse" from the moment Mrs. J. O. Wood as leader, started the lesson it was clear that there was more than a mere pleasant afternoon in store for them, as the lessons of these quiet seers sunk deep into their consciousness. The philosophy of both writers brought out the value of high ideals if we would develop the life of the soul, and the emptiness of outward appearance and worldly attainment compared to perfection of character and spiritual attainment.

A social hour followed the program at the close of which refreshments were served and the club flower, the white carnation, given as favors to thirty-five members and guests. The hostesses Mrs. E. L. Steed and Mrs. W. A. Hill were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. J. E. Hickman, and Mrs. E. C. Willson and Mrs. W. D. Little.

Business Announcement

Both departments of the club will have their regular general meeting in the reception room at the College Tuesday afternoon Oct 16th at 3 o'clock. The following outline will be used in connection with the study of Home and its relation to community and government.

1. Study of the home as an institution; history of its development; its relation to past social orders; its obligations to present orders.
2. Home-making as a vocation. Physical requisites of the home. Importance of budgeting money and time element.
3. Home as related to the community. Organization of community clubs among rural women and older girls in cooperation with home demonstration agents.
4. Government and the Home. Study Smith-Lever Law. What legislation is now pending in the Fess bill?
5. Will the home survive; what is the remedy?

C. L. Baxter, Kansas farmer, reports that when he heard a long continued metallic rat-a-tat-tat in his back yard, he investigated and found that it was a woodpecker trying to peck a hole in the steel wall of the silo.

Africa New Field for Trade Profit for Manufacturers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Union of South Africa as a customer for American made goods is increasing in importance and is improving in character of trade, according to Trade Commissioner Stevenson of the Department of Commerce, who recently returned to this city after three years of service in Johannesburg.

While in pre-war days the American share of South Africa's imports was insignificant, and during the war it was abnormally large it has now settled down to a substantial amount and represents business secured after keen competition. Since the office of the American Trade Commissioner at Johannesburg was opened, more than 100 American goods agencies have been made operative.

In order to establish the desirability of South Africa as a market in the minds of American shippers and manufacturers, Mr. Stevenson is now making a tour of trade centers, describing its advantages.

It is reported that the yield of the peanut crop will be very large this season and that the market will be good.
